GREECE APPEALS FOR U. S. AID

Dies Questions Former Gestapo Agent

RAIDS STAGED ON OFFICES OF ALIEN GROUPS

Society Woman Scheduled To Testify In Chicago on Nazi Letter.

GERMAN YOUTH HELD

Had Photographs of Defense Industries and Names of Spy Ring Members.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—An alien youth described as a former agent of the Nazi Gestapo who engaged in plant and military espionage in the United States, a society woman and leaders of German-American and Italian-American organizations were scheduled today to testify at a closed hearing of a congressional committee investigating un-American activities.

Heinrich Peter Fassbender, alias Harry Smith, who carried credentials allegedly issued by the German secret police and checks issued to him by the Nazi government, was brought to Chicago last night by airplane from Los Angeles where he was subpoenaed by a Dies committee investigator.

Rep. Martin Dies (D., Tex.) chairman of the congressional committee, said Fassbender had agreed to tell about his espionage activities because he believed he was faced with deportation for traveling with a false passport. Dies said he had agreed to intercede for the 23-year-old German to prevent his return to Europe.

Dies said Fassbender had entered the United States by jumping the ship on which he had been employed and had traveled through the nation carrying a seaman's certificate and what Dies described as a "free passport with a Tokyo visa."

Fassbender told newspapermen he had started working as an agent of the Nazi government in 1935 and had operated in Spain and Belgium before he came to the United States.

"He had photographs of industrial plants and the names of people he was connected with," Dies said. "He admitted having taken part in both plant and military espionage."

The society woman was not identified by Dies, but he said he expected to question her because

CONGRESS HAS SHOWDOWN ON ADJOURNMENT

Rival Leaders Cautious on How Vote Will Go In Test Today.

HOUSE HOLDS KEY

Four Appointments Occupy Attention Before Act on Quitting Time.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Amid cautious rival claims on how the vote would go, congress met today for a showdown decision on whether to adjourn for the remainder of the year and go home.

Speaker Rayburn, advocating immediate adjournment, said the Democratic leadership was certain of sufficient strength in the house to pass an adjournment resolution—provided enough Democrats returned to their desks for the occasion.

Rep. Martin (Mass.), Republican leader who opposes adjournment, foresaw, however, a vote "closer than they think it will be. We have a very good chance to defeat the resolution."

Neither the pro nor anti-adjournment forces appeared to be certain of their exact strength. The issue seemed to depend on the number of house members who had interrupted post-election vacations in response to leaders' pleas to come back and vote.

On the senate side the consensus seemed to be that if the house voted for adjournment, the resolution was sure of senate approval.

Both chambers had other items on their calendars bidding for attention.

In the senate administration leaders were anxious to obtain action on four appointments, including that of Harry A. Millis to the labor relations board, which has not yet received committee approval.

Other nominations pending were: Wayne C. Taylor to be under secretary of commerce, John J. Dempsey to be a member of the maritime commission, and J. Warren Madden, whom Millis would replace on the labor board, for judge on the court of claims.

Both house and senate also had before them a joint committee's compromise agreement on the Ramspeck bill which would authorize the president to extend civil service to some 200,000 federal employes after non-competitive examinations.

New Explosion In Southeast Europe Feared

Athens Official Compares Position With That of Finland; Won't Make Mistake of Resting On Early Successes

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Greek government has appealed directly to the United States government for permission to purchase aviation and other military supplies. Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, said the Greek government had been assured that the appeal would receive a most sympathetic response.

(By Associated Press)

Greece appealed for aid from the United States and other "free countries" in her struggle against Italy today as evidence mounted that the Rome-Berlin Axis may be planning a new explosion in southeast Europe.

The Greek press minister, Theo Nicoloudis, directed the appeal especially to the United States and Britain, declaring that his country was fighting a nation six times greater in war materials and that the world should not be misled by current Greek successes in the field.

He compared Greece's present situation with the position of Finland in the war with Russia a year ago, adding:

"We won't make the same mistake as heroic Finland, which, content with her first successes, failed to ask help from abroad."

Britain has already pledged all possible help to the little Aegean kingdom.

Adolf Hitler is rapidly forging an "Axis empire" in Europe, it became increasingly clear today, attempting step by step to array a whole continent in political ties against Great Britain.

In Bucharest, dispatches from Berlin to the Rumanian press heralded "a great military offensive against Greece, Egypt and Africa by Germany and Italy."

Amid a new flurry of diplomatic activity, presumably bringing Bulgaria and Hungary within the Axis fold, the German fuehrer was evidently drawing his lines swiftly to present Britain with a fait accompli of European "unity."

DNB, the official German news agency, disclosed that Hungary is next on the list for Axis discussions—starting in Vienna tomorrow—and that King Boris of Bulgaria secretly conferred with Hitler at his Bavarian mountain retreat, in Berchtesgaden, on Sunday.

Previously, either Hitler or his Axis partner, Benito Mussolini, have conferred with leaders of Soviet Russia, France, Spain and Rumania.

If successful, these talks would appear to leave Europe virtually a "closed corporation" under a Rome-Berlin axis directorate except for conquered nations and the four neutral states of Switzerland, Sweden, Portugal and Yugoslavia.

HOOVER DENIES SABOTAGE WAVE

Says Public Should Guard Against Hysteria Over Plant Explosions.

(Editor's Note: J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, counsels against taking an alarmist view of recent industrial accidents and explosions in defense industries in the following article written exclusively for International News Service.)

By J. EDGAR HOOVER

(Written Expressly for International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The public should guard against any feeling of alarm because of explosions, fires or other industrial mishaps until the basic facts in each situation have been determined by competent investigators.

The is no "wave of sabotage" sweeping through the country.

While it is true that there have been a number of accidents in industrial units, investigation of these occurrences in those plants engaged in the production of materials for the war and navy departments has disclosed in most instances no evidence of sabotage.

It is essential therefore that the American people and particularly employers and employes in industrial facilities not be stampeded into hysterical alarm by statements concerning industrial accidents.

The federal bureau of investigation conducts an immediate investigation of all mishaps occurring in plants in which the war and navy departments are interested. Information is collected concerning explosions, fires and other mishaps in which there is a possibility that a saboteur is at work.

Many of the statements made which have assumed or claimed that sabotage has been perpetrated in a particular industrial accident have been absolutely without any actual foundation in fact.

Crowd Has 'Swell Time' At Annual Police Dance

Ankles Ache Today But Thousands Agree That Fun At Ball Was Worth It; Funds to Help Equip Officers.

Several thousand pairs of ankles ached today and many a Mansfielder was foot-weary but there wasn't a person to complain that he didn't have a swell time at the seventh annual Police dance last night.

It was a happy orderly crowd that jammed its way into the Coliseum to dance to the tunes of Joe Sanders and his famous Night-hawks for more than four hours.

Mansfield police officers decked out in all their finery and young girls and women attired in evening dress added color to the affair which topped all previous records for attendance.

More than 500 persons took part in the grand march, led by Police Chief and Mrs. M. K. Bates and officers and their wives. They paraded past a movie camera set up in the bandstand to record events of the evening.

The motion pictures, police said, will be shown soon at a local theater.

While no estimate was placed on the number of dancers which crowded the floor from 9 a. m. until 1 a. m., members of the police recreation club, sponsors of the event, said that upwards of 6,000 tickets were sold.

Proceeds from the affair will go toward the purchase of the annual supply of ammunition for target practice, and in addition, the department will also sponsor a child safety program.

The committee in charge of the event included Lieut. Paul Whipp, and Patrolmen C. W. Kyler, John Steele, George Yoakum and William Colby.

NIGHT FOOTBALL JUMPS RECEIPTS

Inauguration of night football at Mansfield Senior high school this fall increased gross receipts from grid games for the season about $3,000 over last year, the Senior High Athletic association's report showed today.

Total receipts from the sale of tickets for the season just ended were approximately $8,000 as compared to $5,000 last year. The increase was chalked up this season with only five home games. There were six last year.

H. W. Arlin, president of the board of education and member of the athletic association, said the association will have a balance of about $600 from football this season after all its bills are paid.

The Massillon game, which drew a record crowd of 7,200 persons, accounted for most of

LABOR PEACE

Roosevelt Sends Message To AFL Asking Unity.

NEW ORLEANS, La. —(INS)— President Franklin D. Roosevelt today exhorted the American Federation of Labor to make a "patriotic effort to bring about a just and an honorable peace" in the now bitterly divided labor movement.

In a statement to William Green read to the convention by Secretary-Treasurer George Meany, the president said:

"Responsible action and self-discipline, physical and moral fitness are now required of all of us as our part in the defense of our country and democracy.

"Among the things which labor will contribute is, I venture to suggest an unselfish, a far-sighted and a patriotic effort to bring about a just and an honorable peace within the now divided labor movement. Labor leaders, with the interests of the nation at heart, and the advantage of their followers in mind can, I am sure, find the way to reach such a peace."

DOWNEY, Cal. —(INS)— Determined to bring an end to the strike at the Vultee aircraft plant in Downey, principals from three interested fronts continued to work unceasingly today toward an equitable settlement.

Behind the locked doors of a conference room, union leaders and two federal government representatives were re-sifting facts in the wage dispute over which 3200 walked out Friday and caused the plant to shut down and halt production of military planes.

Meanwhile, the strikers dispatched a telegram to President Roosevelt reminding him that he had said "a true national defense is predicated upon a standard of living which is worth defending," and declaring they were "real Americans asking for a decent wage."

Murray Only Likely Candidate for CIO Presidency

WANTS UNION TO TAKE VOTE AGAINST REDS

Joins Hillman In Opposition To Communists In Office of Labor Groups.

(By Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Philip Murray, gray, quiet spoken Pittsburgh labor leader was the only man talked about today in CIO's national convention as a successor to John L. Lewis in the CIO presidency, but informed labor leaders said Murray had not yet agreed to take the post.

As the convention began consideration of Lewis's stewardship, over the past year, there were increasing reports that Murray would be reluctant to assume the CIO presidency if the convention failed to take a stand against Communism, or signify its willingness to reopen unity negotiations with the American Federation of Labor.

The question of CIO policy toward Communism and the employment of officials who belong to Communist, Nazi or Fascist groups has been raised in the convention by Vice President Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers union.

Hillman, labor member of the national defense commission, is an outspoken critic of Communist, Nazi and Fascist sympathizers in union organizations. He declared in a pre-convention statement that labor must "make sure that those who hold official positions have no divided loyalties."

The clothing workers have proposed that CIO's constitution be amended to prohibit the employment in CIO offices of any one who is a member of Communist, Nazi or Fascist organizations.

Lewis in his opening convention speech yesterday labelled as a "lie" any assertion that CIO policies "are conceived and endorsed and supported and engineered and administered by the adherents of Communism, Nazi or Fascist philosophy."

One of Lewis' aides said the organization's policy up to now has been that CIO members are entitled to their personal political beliefs, so long as they did not take precedence over CIO's labor policies.

Lewis, acclaimed yesterday in a 40-minute demonstration before announcing he would fulfill his pre-election promise to step down as CIO president if President Roosevelt were reelected, asked delegates to support his successor "without stint."

HOUSING PROGRAM

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Loss of jobs by perhaps 5,000,000 men when this country returns to a peace economy was predicted today by Federal Housing Administrator Nathan Straus.

Plans to prevent such wholesale unemployment, Straus said in an address prepared for delivery at the American Federation of Labor convention, should include a public housing program of about 500,000 homes a year at the end of the defense emergency.

"I am not speaking of something theoretical or even problematical," said Straus in suggesting that in preparing against war this country should also prepare for peace. "I am speaking of an event which is as certain as death or taxes."

He said:

"Let us plan now to take up the slack in employment that is sure to occur by a program of useful public works, thoughtfully conceived and carefully worked out now to provide maximum benefits at minimum costs."

Bubbly Wine Bath In Columbus Club Barred By Mayor

COLUMBUS —(AP)— If Tirza wants to take a wine bath in public, she'll have to do it outside the Columbus city limits.

The shapely night club dancer whose specialty calls for ablutions in sparkling burgundy has been denied permission by Mayor Floyd Green to bring her "act" to a downtown night club.

"I'm sorry but my answer has to be 'No,'" the mayor told Miss Tirza.

"After all, I wear a bathing suit . . ." Tirza began.

But Mayor Green walked away, remarking "the case is closed."

Orders New Lighting In Senior High Gym

One of the Richland county draft boards will receive a card sometime this week exempting a Mansfield youth from being conscripted from this county during the present emergency, and the board will offer no arguments about it either. The card will come from West Point where the youth, Alvin M. Bachrach, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Bachrach, 33 Helen avenue, is in his second year. Bachrach signed a card at the school last week which placed him on U. S. army records as an enlisted man, exempting him from draft duty.

Even out of a tragedy comes some good. Orphans at the Richland county Children's home feasted on rabbit last night. Sixteen of the cotton-tails made a pretty fancy meal for the youngsters. They had been in the possession of a hunter whose car was involved in a collision at Ontario Sunday and state highway patrolmen turned them over to the home.

Brought to police headquarters at midnight on a speeding charge, an embarrassed Springfield youth, who was returning from a hunting trip, had to take up a collection among his four young women guests to get the necessary $25 appearance bond. "I knew something would happen when I had such good luck hunting today," the youth lamented.

A group of Mansfield badminton enthusiasts can play their favorite game in the Johnny Appleseed junior high school gymnasium this winter if they are willing to pay $10 a night to use the gym. Following a long discussion last night, the board of education set the $10 charge, limited the group to 40, and decided to rent the gymnasium for badminton only three hours a night one night a week.

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE MEETS

2 Members Added To Executive Committee; Vote To Back Ramspeck Bill.

Two new members were named to the executive committee of the Richland County League of Women Voters last night when the committee met at the home of Mrs. Kathryne Bancroft, Park avenue west, president of the league.

Miss Ruth Dunham was elected secretary to serve out the unexpired term of Mrs. Ben Esgar who resigned this fall when she moved to Cleveland. Mrs. Herbert H Schettler, named to head the child welfare committee, replaces Mrs. Ward Ingraham for the unexpired term which ends next April.

The resignation of Mrs. David Boals was accepted but no appointment was made to fill the vacancy.

The committee decided last night to work vigorously for the passage of the Ramspeck bill now pending in congress and to attack the Nicholas amendment which was attached to it in the house of representatives.

Mrs. Bancroft said that every member of the Richland county league would be acquainted with the facts concerning the bill and asked to talk for it among friends.

The Ramspeck bill is more familiarly known as the extended Civil service bill and would take more than 200,000 government jobs out of politics and put them on the merit system. The bill, which passed the senate has been badly crippled in the house by the Nicholas amendment which proponents of the bill say would defeat the purpose and permit political patronage to control these jobs despite the fact that they were under Civil service. Mrs. Bancroft explained.

Members of the league will be requested to write to their congressman urging passage of the Ramspeck bill without the Nicholas amendment.

It was announced that the regional conference would be held in Columbus at the Neil House, Nov. 27. The next regular meeting of the county league is scheduled for Dec. 2 at 7:30 p. m. at the Chamber of Commerce.

HONORED FOR 50 YEARS WITH STANDARD OIL IN MANSFIELD

In recognition of his 50 years of service with the corporation, approximately 50 employes of the Standard Oil company of Ohio met at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night to pay their respects to Homer K. Cronenwett, Mansfield bulk station agent.

Cronenwett was one of 20 employes of the Mansfield division who were honored with awards for service of from five to 50 years with the company.

The 63-year-old employe, oldest active worker of the company, who started as a warehouse employe at the age of 13 at wages of 50 cents a day, was presented with a diamond-studded service pin by John B. Coleman, Mansfield division manager.

A gold wrist watch was presented him by the 156 employes in the seven-county district. Telegrams of congratulations from the president of the company and other officials were read following a dinner in the ballroom.

In a letter to Cronenwett, read at the dinner, W. T. Holliday, Standard Oil president, said: "Such length of active service means many things. It means, first of all that the man must be blessed with an exceptional physical inheritance. It means that through all the years he must have given conscientious service and that he has had a high sense of responsibility in carrying on work assigned to him."

Cronenwett heard a salute to his years of service by the "Sohio reporter" in a radio broadcast from station WTAM in Cleveland. A radio was stationed in the dining room which was turned to the station.

In a brief talk, A. A. Stambaugh of Cleveland, vice president of Standard Oil company of Ohio, cited Cronenwett's record of "rendering service to others," stating that "if there was more service in giving than receiving, this would be a better world in which to live."

"Those who serve best, exist the longest," he added in congratulating Cronenwett.

Cronenwett recalled that he first went to work for the company in 1891, before the advent of the automobile. The company manufactured kerosene and threw most of its gasoline away, he said. What was sold was dispensed in drug stores.

Presented with the award, he said: "This signifies to me that I have made good."

District Manager Coleman was presented with a ruby-studded service award for 45 years of continuous service with the company. It was presented to him by Stambaugh.

Other awards went to H. H. Keil and R. D. MacIntosh, assistant division manager, both of Mansfield, and A. C. Shumaker of Ashland for 25 years service.

R. C. Hole, Lorain; L. E. Leedy and D. O. McKee of Mansfield, were given 20-year service pins, and J. P. Neff of Medina and R. Stower of Norwalk, were presented with 15-year awards.

Ten-year service pins went to W. P. Long, L. L. Long, and G. E. Mensch, Mansfield; R. H. Snyder and R. Z. Denny of Loudonville; H. R. Gould and W. C. Rust of Elyria, and T. G. McLaughlin, Norwalk.

H. K. CRONENWETT

Five-year awards were given J. E. Christman of Galion and E. Allen of Wooster.

Presentation of the pins was made by McIntosh and Arthur Bush, assistant division managers.

Other speakers were Mayor William J. Locke, George J. Kochenderfer, M. R. Bauer, Cleveland, director of industrial lubricants, and Dr. W. P. Edmunds, Cleveland, director of industrial relations for the company.

SCHOOL BOARD SETS UP FUND FOR PROJECT

Immediate Installation of Modern Equipment Given Approval at Meeting.

With the Mansfield schools' million-dollar building program virtually completed, the board of education last night voted to have new wiring and modern lighting equipment installed in the Senior high gymnasium at a cost of approximately $1,150.

The Ohio Public Service company was authorized to begin the installation immediately so the new lights will be ready for the first home basketball game Dec. 6

Larger wiring in the building will also permit the use of more electrical appliances in class rooms and the installation of sun lamps and X-ray equipment for the treatment of players' injuries, H. W. Arlin, board president, said.

Arlin pointed out that tests showed lights in the Senior high gymnasium are from three to six candlepower as compared to 24 to 38 candlepower in the new John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed gymnasiums.

The schools have received the final payment on the $450,000 PWA grant for the city-wide building program, John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board, reported.

He said the board owes only $18,400 to contractors and bonding companies in connection with the building program and it is ready to pay them when contractors complete their work on the two junior high school buildings.

The entire building program, including the construction of two new junior high schools, a shop addition at Senior high school, and improvements at several grade buildings, cost $1,000,600, only $600 above the estimated cost, Eisaman said.

The project was financed by a $550,000 bond issue and the $450,000 PWA grant. The board paid the small additional cost.

Work on the new auditorium and gymnasium at the Hedges school has been completed at a total cost of $2,034, Eisaman told the board. Most of the work was done by Simon Small and Sons, Mansfield contractors.

Massillon Again Rides on High School Football Throne

Buckeyes Out To Stop Harmon In Top Game

Followers Believe It's Ohio State's Only Chance of Turning Back Michigan.

By J. H. COLBURN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—"Stop 98!" echoed challengingly in Ohio State's big football stadium today.

If Ohio State can stop No. 98—tricky Tommy Harmon, speedy Michigan halfback—the Bucks are given a chance against the invading Wolverines in their final football conflict of the season Saturday

But that's a tremendous task, as Ohio well knows.

* * *

"Michigan's a speed team, built around Harmon," warned Fritz Mackey, Ohio's chief scout, who's been trying — unsuccessfully, he says—to find a weakness in the Wolverine play.

* * *

"It's the best looking Michigan team in years and Harmon's looking better than ever. He plays nearly every minute and is an excellent triple-threat man who is a dangerous touchdown threat every time he gets his hands on the ball"

Ohio's chief hopes rest on rain Saturday. Michigan lost to Minnesota on a muddy field and had trouble against comparatively weak Illinois in the same kind of weather.

Knowing full well that Ohio fans will consider the season a success if Michigan is beaten, the Bucks put lots of dash into their actions as they worked out against Michigan plays performed by freshmen gridders

The Bucks still may be without their star pass receiver for the game, though. Charley Anderson, big Massillon colored end, was kept out of last week's Illinois tilt by a knee injury which has been slow responding to treatment.

Sam Fox, substitute end from Washington, D. C., looked good in Anderson's position against Illinois and may get the starting call

Quite a few spectators in the sellout crowd of 72,000 fans, though, will be watching the individual feats of Harmon and Ohio's ace quarterback, Don Scott. Both are candidates for All-America consideration

Scott made both of Ohio's touchdowns against Illinois and is expected to play a much greater offensive role against Michigan than he has in any previous game.

* * *

The big Canton lad now is trailing his ball-carrying mates in yardage gains. Scott's made only 2.27 yards per try in 60 attempts, while Halfbacks Tom Kidkade, Dick Fisher and James Straubaugh have made 5.2, 5.3 and five, respectively.

* * *

Fullback-Capt Jim Langhurst, the Big Ten's leading ground gainer last year has average 3.4 yards a try in 113 tries this season.

Extra Point Places Grid Elevens at Top

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—While some football authorities have advocated the abolition of the point after touchdown on the ground that it gives false indications of the strength of teams, one point still seems to carry a lot of weight when it comes to ranking the nation's leading teams.

* * *

Minnesota, on top of the list for the second straight week as 169 sports experts rank the teams, has won two of its most important games by one point margins; Stanford, ranked third behind the Texas Aggies, was just one point better than Santa Clara when they met, and Boston College's 19-18 victory over Georgetown last Saturday enabled the Eagles to advance from eighth place to fourth.

Texas A. and M., last year's champion and a close second now, hasn't had a winning margin smaller than seven points in its eight games

The fall of Cornell brought this new "Big Four" of the title contenders into being. Although most of the ballots were cast before it was decided officially that Cornell had lost 3-0 to Dartmouth instead of winning 7-3, the big Red team was dropped from second place to fifth

Minnesota polled 68 first place votes and 66 for second to amass a total of 1,554 points. The Aggies, picked first by 59 experts and second by 51, totalled 1,485 points

Stanford, third of the Big Four with 1,331 points, received 24 first place ballots and 56 for third place. Boston college, had 12 first place votes and 1,043.5 points.

Rankings of other teams this week:

5. Cornell (6 firsts) 885 points, 6 Tennessee (3) 851: 7 Michigan, 821; 8. Nebraska, 329; 9. Georgetown, 318.5; Northwestern, 105; 11. Mississippi, 86.25, 12 Pennsylvania, 84; 13. Washington, 60; 14 Notre Dame, 50.25, 15 Fordham, 57.25; 16. Mississippi State, 47.25; 17. Alabama, 47; 18. Southern Methodist, 46; 19. Santa Clara, 33, tie for 20 Penn State and Texas Tech, 25 each.

* * *

Also rans: Lafayette, 15; Duke, 7; Ohio State, 6; Hardin-Simmons, 5; Pacific Lutheran and Utah, 4 each; Texas, 3; North Carolina, 2; Tulane, Colgate, Clemson and Duquesne, 1 each.

* * *

Michigan, Nebraska, Northwestern and Washington incidentally, are numbered among Minnesota's victims, by margins of one point, or one touchdown.

Black Panther Wins Decision

Given Bout When Leonie Is Disqualified for Strangle.

Disqualified in the second fall for use of the strangle hold, Tony Leonie lost the decision in the main event of the weekly wrestling show last night at the Soprana-Doehla Athletic club to the Black Panther.

The Panther took the first bout in 27½ minutes, and in the second bout was given the decision when Leonie twice used the strangle hold. Buck Weaver won the decision over Gil LaCross in the semi-final event, taking the first two falls.

A battle royal opened the show in which five wrestlers took part Last two remaining were matched in the final and the next two in the semi-final Promoter Bob Steele entered the battle royal, substituting for Jimmy Goodrich who failed to appear. Steele was the first to fall.

Ens Likely To Fill Post

Indianapolis Manager May Succeed Wilson.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—When Jimmy Wilson pushed a pen along the dotted line on a two-year contract to manage the Chicago Cubs, he left a big empty spot in the heart of the Queen City's fan and Jewell Ens Indianapolis club manager, is the first man mentioned as a candidate to fill the vacancy.

Ens, who succeeded Wes Griffin with the American Association Indians last mid-season, has long been a friend of Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds with whom the Indians have a working agreement.

President Leo T. Miller of the Indianapolis club said Ens has signed to manage the Indians in 1941."

"Whether the Reds have designs on him I do not know. I never been contacted as yet so we'll have to wait to see what happens Miller added.

LAST NIGHT'S BOWLING SCORES

* * *

Bowling with the Kiwanis club in the Club league, Bill tickled the pins for a sensational 661 although his team dropped two games to the Optimist club.

* * *

Only two other keglers broke the 600-mark last night. Clarence "Sonny" Meder, a member of the Page Dairy team in the Club league, had a 604 and Harold Selby of the Liederkrantz club in the same circuit, had a 601.

Harold opened his series with a nifty 256 as his team came through with a 2865 to take two games from the Rotary club.

Tigers Annex 10 Contests To Cop Crown

Team Allows Opponents to Score Six Points While It Collects 477.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Now that the high school football campaign is over—except for a few Turkey day and other late-season returns—we're right back where we've been at corresponding dates for the last six years.

Each season, when the results are tallied, we find ourselves placing the championship wreath on those terrific Tigers from Massillon—and you couldn't find a better batch of brows in any scholastic realm

* * *

In fact, the only ruffled brow in Massillon today is that of Coach Paul Brown, who loses nine of his starters by graduation in June. He's been doing that for years, however, so opposing coaches aren't too optimistic about 1941.

* * *

The Tigers blasted unbeaten Canton McKinley off the championship road Saturday, 34 to 6, for their 10th win of the year and their 33rd in a row. It was the worst defeat inflicted on Canton since the big series started 45 years ago—and before the tilt the Bulldogs were conceded at least an even chance to win

Only once in the last six years has Massillon's claim to the Ohio title been disputed, Toledo Waite winning 11 games, including the Buckeye Bowl tilt with Portsmouth, last season to stake out a bid for the laurels. However, Waite fell before Massillon by 28 to 0 this year, making only one first down.

The lone touchdown scored by Canton (flashy Athe Garrison made it in the first period) constituted the only points counted against the Tigers this year. Massillon wound up the campaign with 477 to six for its 10 foes.

That closing victory left Massillon as the only 10-game winner in the state, although several other squads boasted clean slates. Bracketed in second place, with nine wins for the campaign, were West Jefferson, Dennison and Powhatan, the latter piling up 204 points to none for the enemy. For West Jeff and Dennison it was the second straight unbeaten season, each having 18 straight.

Boasting eight conquests for the year were Oxford McGuffey, Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home, Clay of Toledo, McConnelsville and Orrville, the latter running its undefeated string to 17. Among the unbeaten, but tied, teams are Columbus North, Bexley, Mt. Blanchard, and Cincinnati Elder, while Newark, Cincinnati Western Hills, Findlay, Fostoria and Portsmouth were among the teams joining Canton McKinley in the one-defeat class.

Duane Traucht of Arlington was stopped cold as his team absorbed a 13-0 setback at the hands of Mt. Blanchard, but he clung to the individual scoring lead with 176 points. Garrison moved his second-place total to 152 with his marker against Massillon, and idle Willard Colby of Xenia's O. S & S. O. Home stayed in third place with 143.

* * *

Dick Zubel of Columbus St. Charles rammed over four touchdowns in a 32-0 win over Columbus St. Marys to reach fourth place with 138, while other leading point-getters were: Gene Fekete of Findlay and Capt. Bob Robinett of Bryan, 118; Bob Slaughter of London, 111; Freddie Kenvin of Osborn Bath, 110; Horace Gillom of Massillon, 108; Keith Nelson of Jacksonville, 104, and Matthew Brown of Canton McKinley, 92.

* * *

Until someone pops up with more, the point-after-touchdown palm goes to Ray Getz of Massillon, who booted 36 of the one-pointers in addition to scoring seven touchdowns.

New Cub Pilot Not Ready To Talk About His Club Yet

CHICAGO—(AP)—Jimmy Wilson hadn't been manager of the Chicago Cubs more than 15 minutes before he let it be known that he is no popoff.

* * *

"Why should I start talking right away about what I am going to do?" he asked. "I want to look the situation over before making any recommendations."

* * *

Wilson agreed to terms in a conference yesterday with James Gallagher, general manager, and Charles (Boots) Weber, vice president, and signed a two-year contract last night.

He affixed his signature to the paper as soon as Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati club to which he belonged, arrived and personally handed him his unconditional release. The salary figure was thought to be about $20,000.

Wilson, however, revealed immediately that he wouldn't back away from any attractive trades for material.

"While I saw plenty of the Cubs last season," he said, "I wasn't looking at them with the same slant I now must take as their manager. But there is one thing certain, I'll listen to all trade propositions.

* * *

"I won't hesitate to act if I can make a trade beneficial to the team. From what little I known at this time I figure the big need is pitching."

Davis, Kavanagh to Appear Before Boxing Heads.

NEW YORK —(UP)— A stormy session was predicted for today's meeting of the boxing commission after Al "Bummy" Davis, young Brooklyn boxer, and Referee Billy Kavanagh were summoned to appear in connection with Friday night's turbulent disqualification at Madison Square Garden.

* * *

Possible suspension or loss of his license, and a maximum fine of $5,000 faces Davis because of his repeated low blows against Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic and his actions in the ring after disqualification. Kavanagh was summoned as a witness.

* * *

Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins and Challenger Pete Lello will also attend and sign official commission contracts for their 15-round title bout at the Garden Friday night.

STOPS HAYES

CHICAGO — Billy Gillespie Stone Lake Wis heavyweight stopped Mickey Hayes Milwaukee (7).

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE.

OKLAHOMA CITY—(UP)—This is a long, long way from Hanover, New Hampshire, but even out here folks are beginning to wonder what Dartmouth plans in honor of the cameraman whose pictures gave the Big Green football team a belated, but nonetheless tremendous, 3 to 0 victory over supposedly invincible Cornell last Saturday.

* * *

It has been suggested that Dartmouth athletic officials retire the Jersey number of the cameraman whose shots revealed that Cornell had five downs in scoring its touchdown, just as Grange's 77 was put away in a case and just as Tommy Harmon's 98 will be placed in mothballs, lace and old lavender by Michigan at the end of this season.

* * *

This would be entirely fitting if only cameramen wore jerseys and numbers But as they don't, I would like to suggest to Coach Red Blaik and Athletic Director Jim Lynch that they retire the complete outfit the cameraman was wearing last Saturday.

Put his topcoat in one case, his pants, vest and coat in another, his shirt tie and collar in another, and his studs, shoes, socks, and derby in another

After this was done, they could buy the cameraman a new outfit and formally announce that no cameraman wearing an outfit similar to the one retired would be allowed in the Dartmouth stands

The more you think of what an upset Dartmouth's victory was, and of what an important part the pictures played in bringing about a reversal of the first verdict, the more you feel that Dartmouth should award the cameraman a block D

I can't help but speculate as to the changes in football this incident of last Saturday is likely to bring about. In the first place, football teams may be expected to start scouting for promising young photographers as well as for tackle, guard and fullback material

Offers of tuition, board and a soft job will be made to high school boys who show extraordinary talent in the dark room or have a way with lenses or a natural, easy motion with a tripod. Triple threat photographers who can focus, develop, print and project will be at a premium

If photography does take its place in football, there will be one distressing angle. Double features already the bane of many a movie-goer's life, will become triple features.

Along with "Purple Passion" and "Souls Adrift," there will be shown a football game, at which the actual and official score will be announced. All bets on games will be made "payable in the lobby" after the last reel is shown and it has been proved who really won

* * *

The cameras are going to make it very tough on the football officials' boners. They'll be right there on the reel because, unlike Hollywood stars, they won't be able to get retakes.

THEATERS

Swashbuckling Riders.

PARAMOUNT places one of its best box-office bets in an outdoor action picture. "Rangers of Fortune," which is offered at the Ohio Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Fred MacMurray has Gilbert Roland and Albert Dekker as his saddle mates. This swashbuckling trio escapes a Mexican firing squad, rides into Texas and to the rescue of a small girl and her grandfather. Dekker will be remembered for his role of the atheist in "Strange Cargo."

* * *

New Blondie Feature.

The combination of a Blondie episode and Gloria Jean's new starring picture gives the Madison an attractive bill for the middle of the week. Opening there tomorrow is "Blondie Plays Cupid" with the popular cartoon characters attempting to smooth out the path for two runaway lovers. Gloria Jean is seen in "A Little Bit of Heaven" with a cast of favorites. Robert Stack, seen here last week with Deanna Durbin, Hugh Herbert, C Aubrey Smith, Stuart Erwin and Billy Gilbert head the cast.

* * *

Night Drivers.

The dramatic story of the men who drive the freight trucks is told in "They Drive By Night," a Ritz attraction Wednesday and Thursday. Through the romance of George Raft and Ann Sheridan is woven a story of the drugging weariness that comes from loss of sleep as men drive through the night to deliver fresh goods to the cities. An almost-grown-up Jane Withers in "Girl From Avenue A" is the second feature.

Frontier Action.

The days of the Civil war are revived in "Virginia City" with Errol Flynn as a dashing army officer and Miriam Hopkins as a lovely Southern spy posing as a ballroom entertainer in the frontier city. Randolph Scott, Humphrey Bogart and Frank McHugh add interest to the cast. "Flight Angels" with Wayne Morris, Virginia Bruce, Dennis Morgan and Ralph Bellamy, tells of the part women play in aviation. The two features are at the Majestic.

* * *

Famous Film Returns.

"Lost Horizon," one of the outstanding pictures of a decade, is brought back to Mansfield this week and is being shown at the Park. This is James Hilton's story of a man's search for eternal youth and tranquility. Ronald Colman is seen as the man in quest of peace of soul. Thomas Mitchell, Jane Wyatt and Margo have major roles. Also shown on the same bill which ends Wednesday is "Blondie Has Servant Trouble."

MINE DEPOT

CANTON—(INS)—The ball room, at nearby Meyers Lake park, will be the home of the Canton McKinley high school basketball team this fall Temporary seats will be installed for each game. TRENDS UNEVEN AMONG STOCKS IN MART TODAY

U. S. Steel, General Electric In List Resistant; Commodities, Bonds Are Uneven.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Indefinite trends ruled in today's stock market.

Among resistant stocks now and then were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Electric, American Telephone, Great Northern, N. Y. Central, U. S. Rubber, Texas Corp. and International Paper.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

The matter of mounting taxes came in for more scrutiny in Wall street.

Boardrooms found further confirmation of the industrial upswing in the statement of federal reserve member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Nov. 13 disclosing another jump in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of $68,000,000.

Studied also in connection with banking activities was the letter of Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones which was interpreted as indicating a new government defense financing policy.

ALIENS WARNED REGISTRATION DEADLINE NEAR

Little More Than Month Left To Fill Out Blanks; 930 Apply In Richland.

With little more than a month remaining in which aliens now living in the United States can register without penalty, the department of justice estimated today that approximately 800,000 non-citizens still had not applied for registration blanks.

At the end of last week, postoffice officials here had registered and fingerprinted more than 930 aliens living in this vicinity. It had been previously estimated that the number of aliens residing in this area was well over 1,000.

During the next few weeks, postoffice officials here plan to visit the Ohio State Reformatory and other institutions in the area to register and fingerprint aliens there. A great number of crippled and sick aliens have already been registered in their homes, Postmaster H. E. Homberger said.

According to a bulletin issued by the department of justice this week, aliens were warned that at the end of the registration period they would face criminal prosecution.

Under the Alien Registration act, aliens not registered before Dec. 26 will face a $1,000 fine, six months in jail, or both.

Aliens not registered in the vicinity were urged by postoffice officials to come to the postoffice without delay and ask for an application blank. There are no fees of any kind connected with the registration.

Aliens who have registered and have since moved to another residence must notify the immigration and naturalization service of the department of justice in Washington within five days or their registration is void. Blanks for this purpose may be obtained at the postoffice.

FAITH

Solid faith that democracy would survive and that the people under the "iron heels" of dictators would themselves rebel was expressed by the President in his Armistice Day address. Seems that America has little to worry from the forces of fascism and reaction, either within or without, when a man of such faith is at the helm.

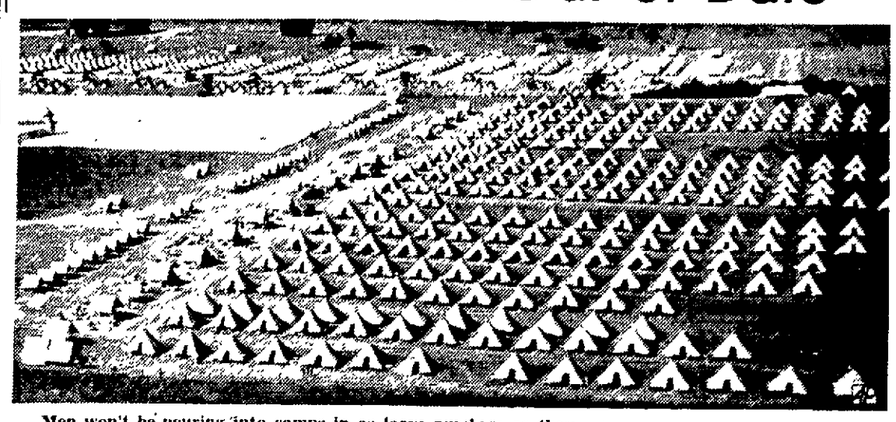
The U. S. Army's Ready This Time; Private Misfit's Out of Date



Men won't be pouring into camps in as large numbers as they did in 1917-19. The result will be better camp organization, better sanitation and more attention to the individual soldier's peace of mind.

The life of a soldier is not what it used to be. Morgan Beatty of the AP Feature Service found this out when he investigated where the new draftees would be going and what they would be doing. This is the first of his six articles.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—The big difference between the draft army of 1940 and the draft army of 1917-'18 is about 3,000,000 men.

And what a whale of a difference 3,000,000 men make!

In World war days, the army had to take on more than it could handle. For a while they pushed a million men a month through the training camps.

Naturally there were 90-day-wonder shavetails who'd march companies right off cliffs if the sergeant didn't stop them. Sanitation was not all that could be desired. Camp streets often were seas of mud. And the army was handling weapons many of its officers didn't understand.

Meant To Stop It.

There's that classic about the infantry officer who so deplored the death rate in forced airplane landings that he posted this bulletin on a Texas air field:

Effective this date, there will be no more forced landings!"

Shoes and uniforms seldom fit well in 1917. Haste was the reason for all this. We were arming too fast, training men too fast.

This time, the medical corps says it is ready to cope with all preventable epidemics, the doctors remember the tragedy of the 1918 flu epidemic. Uniforms have been modified for easy fitting. Every camp will have a shoe fitting machine. Air officers will give orders to air troops.

The army's punch card system is probably the outstanding difference. Under it men will give their trades, hobbies, preferences, hopes. And they'll be given jobs that fit them when possible. (More about this in another article.)

The army hopes Private Misfit will not haunt his officers as he did in 1918.

One day a World war commanding officer got a requisition for all expert automobile mechanics in his camp. He sent for Private Misfit.

"What did you do before you got in the army?"

"Engraver, sir."

"You must be mistaken," said the exasperated commander.

"Think! Weren't you an automobile mechanic?"

"Well, sir, I don't—"

"Just what I thought. Pack up your duds and report to headquarters as an expert automobile mechanic!"

Won't Happen Again.

That won't happen again, unless the punch card machine slips a cog.

And P. S., Mom and Dad: The army says you can visit the training camps most any time to see for yourself how all this is working out. But if there's something special about your son the army ought to know, please take it up with the draft board BEFORE he gets in. It'll be ever so much easier to straighten out.

BITTINGER CHARGES BRICKER AGENTS 'CORRUPTED' VOTERS

COLUMBUS—Democratic State Chairman J. Freer Bittinger charged today that Bricker campaign agents "used vast sums of money to corrupt the electorate."

"An all-time record of political corruption was set by the Bricker campaign managers," Bittinger said in a statement. "They admitted in their reports to the secretary of state that they collected almost a million dollars ($903,311) and spent nearly three quarters of a million ($725,392).

"I make the grave charge that they spent a million and a half dollars and were afraid to report it all.

"This is not the most serious of their offenses. It is generally reported that their agents bought votes by the tens of thousands and used vast sums of money to corrupt the electorate in other ways.

"Their conduct of the 1940 election will go down in history as the most scandalous of all the shameful use of political money, not except the lush days of Mark Hanna. No one can use that much money nonestly in an Ohio campaign."

Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, won a second term in the Nov. 5 election by defeating Democratic Martin L. Davey. Republicans won the three state offices and two supreme court judgeships and Democrats two offices and one judgeship.

Davey in a post-election statement asserted that his campaign had been handicapped by lack of money.

Bittinger also charged that "the Bricker gang" took money from headquarters of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, "and then traded Mr. Willkie down the river in the most brazen and sordid manner known to Ohio politics."

The state chairman said that Democrats "followed the regular rule of politics and that we have no sins to hide."

ASKS $25,580

Widow Sues on a In Mate's Death In Mishap.

Suit for $25,580 damages had been filed in common pleas court today by Mrs. Charlotte Hayes, Mansfield, against George Reichert, Mansfield taxi owner.

The action involves the death of Mrs. Hayes' husband, Willard F. Hayes, in a traffic accident last June 22 at the intersection of East Second street and Franklin avenue. Hayes was fatally injured when his car figured in a collision with a taxi.

In her petition, Mrs. Hayes contends that the taxi was being operated in a negligent manner. She is represented by Attys. Henkel and Gongwer and R. L. Culbertson.

Before Mrs. Hayes filed the action, a previous $25,000 suit she had brought against Reichert was dismissed.

$300,000 GIVEN SUBDIVISIONS IN PROPERTY TAX

Advance Draft Reduce Total Settlement Figure on Real Estate Levy.

More than $300,000 had been distributed today to Richland county, its cities, villages, townships and school districts by County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe in the real estate tax settlement for the last half of the year.

Tax collections for the period totaled $625,027, but schools and other subdivisions drew nearly $300,000 in advance settlements.

Mansfield schools, with a $191,681 share of the tax money, had only $681 left when the auditor made the regular allocation. The rest had been paid to them previously to keep the schools operating.

The city of Mansfield, without any advances collected $123,108 in real estate tax funds, while Shelby received $13,380 in the settlement.

Shelby schools were allocated $29,990 as their share. They had requested no advances.

City and rural schools drew $316,314, or more than half of the tax funds collected for the last half of this year. Villages received $124,354, the county's 18 townships got a total of $49,993, and the county government received $103,279.

NEW EXPLOSION IN SOUTHEAST EUROPE FEARED

Greece Appeals For Aid From U. S. and Other 'Free Countries.'

a "clear sign that the goal of building European on completely new principles is being . . . brought nearer realization."

Meanwhile, in the 23-day-old Balkan war, Greece claimed sweeping new successes in a counter-invasion into Albania, with Italian troops steadily falling from the key city of Koritza, 10 miles inside Albania.

Premier Mussolini's Fascist columns were reported fighting fiercely to keep open their road of retreat from the Koritza zone, and the advancing Greeks were said to have captured great numbers of prisoners, stores and war materials including 10,000 blankets, quantities of grain, 10 field guns, 33 anti-tank guns and 15 mortars.

Reuters (British news agency) dispatches from Yugoslavia said the town fell at last to Greek attack at 1 a. m. today (6 p. m., EST., Monday), but the Greek high command made no immediate claim of capturing the crossroads base.

The Italians were reported, however, to have given up counter attacking and called upon their planes to cover their retreat to a new defense line.

The Greeks said their advance troops were threatening to cut off the last road of Italian escape, and reported "fierce fighting" there and on the Epirus battle-front, where Greek troops were said to have made other raids into Albania, capturing prisoners and seizing supplies.

The Bulgarians, who long have demanded an outlet to the Aegean sea through eastern Greece, learned today their King Boris had joined the list of European leaders who have talked with Adolf Hitler.

An official announcement in Sofia said Hitler and the king met Sunday — preceding yesterday's conference of Hitler, Italy's foreign minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and Spain's foreign minister Ramon Serrano Suner.

Many observers added these conferences to their list of indications the Axis may be planning blows at Britain through Spain toward Gibraltar and at England's little Mediterranean ally, Greece, through Bulgaria, in support of the stalled Italian drive from Albania.

A storm over Britain and the English channel cut down the customary trading of air blows last night between Britain and Germany.

The British reported "few casualties and little damage" from bombings at Liverpool, in one Midlands community, and along the south coast. London, which had four alarms during the night, reported no bombs were dropped there.

One small squadron of RAF bombers was said to have struck through the storm in a raid on "an oil target" in central Germany.

The Italian high command reported that its land, sea and air forces had repulsed a British attempt to seize the island of Gaidaro in the Dodecanese in the Aegean sea archipelago off the Turkish coast.

"Enormous damage" to British aeronautical and defense works and barracks in the Siwa oasis in Egypt by an Italian air attack also was reported.

The Italians said there was sharp fighting but no material change in the Epirus front in Greece yesterday but they acknowleged that the Greeks had occupied the Albanian village Ezeki.

The German high command said ten British merchant ships totaling 51,220 tons were sunk off England yesterday by submarines or dive bombers.

Meanwhile the British admiralty reported the loss of 13 merchant ships through enemy action in the week ended Nov. 10-11, including one Allied and two neutral vessels.

Despite the reported smashing of Hitler's invasion fleet in mid-September, war office undersecretary Sir Edward Grigg warned the house of commons that the Germans still may attempt to invade Britain at any time.

Sir Edward said a large part of the German army "stands mobilized and ready for any purpose."

The Zerre Azul was bound for Tampico [illegible] The Cerda was bound for Tampico from New Orleans. The officers were thoroughly questioned and ships papers were carefully scrutinized by the American naval officers who boarded the ships, their crews said.

The newspaper El Mundo editorialized angrily over the incident. It predicted that it would lead to Mexican diplomatic representations because the ships were halted six to eight miles off the coast. Mexico asserts sovereignty over its coastal waters up to nine miles.

Declaring that the incident had created "an unfavorable impression," the newspaper said that three Mexican warships patrol Mexican waters under the Pan-American neutrality zone agreement, and the American ships were poaching on their territory.

In Mexico City, American diplomatic oficials refused to comment.

Give Hospital Screen To Sanatorium

Fear Italian Counter Attack

BELGRADE—(U.P.)—Frontier reports said today that Italian planes have started a new heavy bombardment of Greek positions around Koritza, possibly preparatory to a counter-attack designed to save the southeast Albanian base.

It was reported that the Italians are concentrating large numbers of troops and supplies at Bobistica, near Koritza.

This troop concentration, it was believed, was being made in preparation for a strong Italian counter-attack.

Jap Warships Seen at Saigon

HONGKONG—(U.P.)—A dispatch from French Indo-China to the British-owned China Mail today reported that Japanese warships and transports had appeared off the Saigon river, the approach to Saigon, Indo-China's chief port.

This was said to coincide with renewed Japanese pressure for French permission to land troops at Saigon. Japanese military leaders were said to have shown impatience over the delay in Vichi's reply.

Claim Island Attack Repulsed

ROME.—(U.P.)—A British attempt to capture the island of Gaidaro, in the Dodecanese group, was repulsed "by prompt action of Italian land, sea and air forces," the communique of the high command said today.

(Gaidaro is 10 miles south of the Greek island of Samos and the nearest of the Dodecanese islands to Samos. A dispatch from Athens today said that a band of 15 Samos civilians, headed by a Dr. Vergis, went in a small motorboat to an unnamed island of the Dodecanese group yesterday afternoon, attacked the Italian marine port guard, killed a petty officer and three sailors and took three Italian carabinieri prisoners back with them to Samos to exhibit as war prizes.)

The communique gave no details of the attempt on the island but it was generally believed here that British forces, probably in connection with Greeks, had tried to effect a landing party from British warships.

China States Terms of Peace

CHUNGKING (China)—(U.P.)—Dr. H. H. Kung, China's vice premier and finance minister, declared today Japan can have peace anytime she wants if she withdraws her troops from China.

"The Japanese government knows well I like to talk with [illegible] for China is not interested in [illegible] for peace." Dr. Kung said in commenting on an [illegible] Tokio reports that Japan would seek to end the Sino-Japanese war by direct negotiations with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the Nationalist government.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Harold Lloyd, a sideline-sitter for the present, isn't retiring those horn-rimmed, glassless specs nor the screen character who wore them.

"I've heard reports that I'm quitting," he commented after watching Director Richard Wallace finish a scene for the current Lloyd production. "I don't know why that should be, just because for once I'm making a picture without being in it. I'd be in this one if there was a part for me, but it happens there isn't. I'll be acting again when I find a good story, suitable to my type."

The story he has now is "A Guy, A Girl, and A Gob." The girl is Lucille Ball, the guy, Edmond O'Brien, and the gob, George Murphy.

It's an interesting transition for O'Brien, the stage actor who had the romantic lead in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—and, confidentially, wasn't too impressive. Here he's still the romantic lead, but they're making him into a comedian. The lad has a Buster Keaton expression that he lacked before.

* * *

ONE of the reasons movie "bullets" are so ineffective, even in quantity, is the movie code forbidding mass slaughter. . . . Prime instance is in "Melody Ranch," the Gene Autry feature which winds up with him fighting a mob. The code authority ruled that in the script too many men were killed—so Autry is allowed only two or three victims.

The casting office: "Ida Lupino is a good bet for "How Green Was My Valley"—she owes 20th two pictures a year. With her Warner contract, she's also in line for the vital "other woman" role in "Far Horizon," the Bette Davis-George Brent romance. Definite for this picture is Hattie McDaniel, just back from personals.

After looking around for a band leader to star opposite Betty Grable in "The Great American Broadcast," they're using Tyrone Power, who isn't a band leader but doubtless can learn.

Note to the fur-minded: Carole Lombard is wearing sealskin this winter. Had a cape made for $150. The furrier estimates it will cost $650 to duplicate a year from now because of Carole's wearing it. All the trained seals in town should picket Lombard on behalf of their wild brethren.

Robert Montgomery used to be quite a skiier. Learned when he was six and kept it up through his teens. But Hollywood does things to such talent unless you take to the snow-clad hills oftener than Bob. For a skiing scene in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" he managed to coast just five feet before sitting down. He finished on the seat of his pants.

THREE KILLED

Explosion Wrecks Buildings at Canadian Plant.

PARRY SOUND, Ont.—(INS)—Three men were killed today in an explosion which razed two buildings in the TNT division of a government munitions plant near Nobel, and an undetermined number were injured.

A fourth man, Louis Gourdier, died of a heart attack in a bunkhouse a mile away at the instant of the blast.

Provincial police reported eight other workmen missing but this report was denied by company officials. No estimate of the number injured was available but it is believed small.

A wide investigation was underway but it was believed that one of the explosion victims might have unintentionally ignited the TNT. He was working near the scene with a blow torch.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(AP)—A rising young attorney had some bad moments when his younger brother, after an argument, left in a huff and printed and distributed a batch of cards which said, in effect:

A settlement between the brothers was reached almost immediately, although the terms were not disclosed.

CALDWELL.—(AP)—Grover Smith, Democrat seeking his third term as Noble county engineer, announced last night that he would contest a recount of votes which gave his Republican opponent, Homer Weedon, a four-vote victory. Smith won also by four votes in the original count following the Nov. 5 election.

working to capacity and able to handle additional production.

Other new points take in activities to obtain dredging and widening of the Rocky Fork to eliminate flooding of the industrial district; to seek further development of the municipal airport; construction of a viaduct linking Park avenue west on Springmill street; the straightening of U. S. route 42 and U. S. route 30, east of the city; and by-passing truck traffic from the congested district.

The program calls for continued work for rehabilitation of the municipal water and sewer systems, further improvement of the park system and additional recreational facilities.

It calls for continued fire prevention and health activities and to strive for more adequate fire equipment and lower fire insurance rates.

Suggested is the continued study of the city manager form of government, the encouragement of new industries to the city and the protection of existing industry and a $14,500,000 annual payroll distributed here.

Advertisement and promotion of the sale of Mansfield-made products to the nation and to work for closer urban and rural relationship with the view of expanding the trade territory, is also advocated.

Other points call for work toward removal of old street car rails on Park avenue west; continued study of downtown traffic problems; endeavor to bring more conventions to Mansfield; continue to express views of the chamber members on legislative matters affecting business in Mansfield, and to continue activities designed to minimize soliciting and promotionly schemes of doubtful value.

Members were also asked to vote on the number of membership meetings to be scheduled during the next 12 months.

EVACUATION

Aged, Sick, and Children To Be Taken From London.

LONDON.—(AP)—A committee charged with investigating air raid shelter conditions, headed by Lord Horder, urged today the immediate removal of the aged, infirm, bedridden and children from London.

These groups add to "the difficulty of supervision" and "increase the risk to health," he said.

Delano Auxiliary Gives Sanatorium Hospital Screen

Women of the Delano lodge auxiliary presented a large white hospital screen to the Richland County Tuberculosis sanatorium Monday morning, one of many gifts which are being tendered the county institution.

The screen of white enamel frame with white curtains, is for use in the operating room. It was presented to Dr. Lincoln Fisher, director of the hospital, and Miss Nancy Pottinger, supervisor of nursing, by Mrs. Elva Harnly and Mrs. Elmira Caugherty, members of the Delano auxiliary welfare committee.

The auxiliary has shown its interest in the sanatorium from its opening, taking flowers, fruit and magazines for distribution among patients.

she had been mentioned in a letter that was signed, he said, by a Chicago Nazi agent.

Officers of 10 Chicago organizations whose memberships are composed of persons of German or Italian descent were questioned by Dies during the first session of the hearing.

While these leaders were being questioned, committee investigators assisted by Chicago police raided offices of the societies and confiscated correspondence, financial records and membership lists.

Similar raids were conducted on offices of organization suspected of un-American activities in every principal city of the nation at the same time, Dies said.

STATE PLANS HOME GUARD

Organization of 4,000 Men to Start January Drills.

COLUMBUS.—(AP)—An Ohio state guard for home defense to replace Ohio national guardsmen now in army camps probably will begin drills by mid-January, Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light said today.

Light said he would meet in Memorial hall here soon with persons who have expressed interest in organizing the state guard. Hundreds have volunteered for such service, he said.

Tentative plans, Light reported call for a state-wide organization of about 4,000 men.

DEFENSE BASE WORK RUSHED

Navy Plans $60,000,000 Air and Sea Protection In British Trade.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The navy plans to rush construction, informed persons said today, on a $60,000,000 chain of bases for the sites acquired from Britain in the western hemisphere.

There also were indications that United States naval tenders might move into some of the newly-acquired anchorages immediately and provide temporary base facilities for American submarines and seaplanes guarding the Atlantic and Caribbean approaches to the vital Panama canal area.

The way to a general start of construction and partial occupancy of some bases appeared cleared by the navy's announcement last night that "all the British authorities concerned" had agreed upon sites to be leased by this government in Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Antigua, St. Lucia, British Guiana and Newfoundland.

Only at Trinidad, the southern "anchor" of the chain, were arrangements still incomplete. That British island possession is off the northeast coast of South America.

The base rights in both Newfoundland and Bermuda were given to the United States without compensation. The other six sites, under a 99-year lease, were obtained in the historic international "swap" involving 50 American destroyers.

American surveying parties already are at work in Newfoundland, northern "anchor" of the new chain, where a major defense post is planned, including an air base and army training ground, a naval base with 1,250 feet of wharfage, and a site of approximately 160 acres for an army defensive force.

These facilities at Newfoundland, off the coast of Canada, would put shore-based warships and planes on the flank of any enemy fleet which attempted to attack this country from the north Atlantic without first reducing that stronghold.

Another disclosure made in last night's announcement was that military aircraft of both the United States and Great Britain would have joint use of airfields established by both governments on the island of Jamaica, south of Cuba.

Ohio Officials Attack Army Ban Against Ex-Convicts

SHERWOOD AND HENDERSON HIT 'UNFAIR' RULE

Declare Men Who Have Paid Debt To Society Have Right To Serve.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The war department's ruling which denies men convicted of a felony the right to serve in the U. S. army, either as a volunteer or draftee, was bitterly assailed today by three sources interested in the rehabilitation of prisoners who have paid their debt to society.

Warden Frank D. Henderson, of Ohio penitentiary, a former adjutant general and until recently a brigadier general in the national guard, criticized the regulation as wrong "both in principle and practice."

"Un-American and unfair" were terms applied to the edict by State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, and the Volunteers of America, a group devoted to aiding men released from prison, viewed it as discriminatory.

"When a man is convicted of a crime and serves the sentence handed down by the court," Henderson said, "he has settled his debt with society for that particular offense.

"Temporarily the state deprives him of his rights to vote and hold office, but not his citizenship status. However, in this instance the federal government closes the gates of the army to a man who has as much right to serve his country as you and I."

Henderson pointed out that the rule was not just because "many a man leaves the penal institution a better citizen" and he "would be an even better one if given the chance to serve his country as he desires."

Sherwood charged the edict was a direct blow at the rehabilitation of men who have served their prison terms for felonies.

"We ask industry and society," he said, "to accept these men and we solicit their aid in helping men convicted of crimes to rehabilitate themselves to the American way of life.

"Then the federal government immediately closes the door on an opportunity which would give them an even better chance to quickly adjust themselves."

The spokesmen for the Volunteers of America, lashed the ruling as "discriminatory against men who have paid their debt to society and who are attempting to become an asset instead of a liability."

The regulation banning those convicted of felonies from serving in the army is not new to the war department. It has been on the books many years but never was enforced rigidly until fingerprinting of army recruits was placed into operation.

PASTOR FACES DRAFT CHARGE

Refused to Register, Preached Against Conscription.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Rev. Allen Clay Lambert, who refused to register for military service and declared from the pulpit that conscription was the "greatest crime against the republic since its founding," was charged today with draft evasion.

Acting U. S. Attorney George Mashank said the 34-year-old United Lutheran pastor in the central Pennsylvania community of Sinking Valley would be required to post bond for a hearing before a U. S. commissioner.

GHOST TOWNS FEARED AFTER DEFENSE BOOM

New Housing For Communities Near Munitions Plants Urged By Army.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — War department officials fear that if new communities are constructed to house employes of the projected $1,000,000,000 chain of munitions plants they will become "ghost" towns when the emergency ends.

Authoritative sources said today the war department is urging that whatever new housing projects are necessary be built in existing nearby communities. Army officials believe that it would be easier to arrange for commutation to the factories than to seek uses for new towns, if built, after they have served their purpose.

Some defense commission officials and members of the U. S. housing authority believe, however, that the defense program requires at least $700,000,000 worth of emergency housing construction. Congress has appropriated $250,000,000 for it already and President Roosevelt has allocated $40,000,000 for 62 priority projects, mostly for already existing army and navy establishments.

War department officials were said to favor a less elaborate housing program to avoid having factory communities, built during the emergency stranded when munitions no longer are needed in such vast amounts.

The war department has made preliminary surveys of the housing situation at sites for two of the 26 plants under contract — smokeless powder plants at Charlestown, Ind., and Radford, Va., and was said to favor housing employes in nearby towns.

UNION SERVICES

Mansfield Congregations To Join In Observance.

Three Mansfield churches will participate in a union Thanksgiving service Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Central Methodist church and six other churches will hold union Thanksgiving services at the United Brethren church Thursday at 10 a. m.

Besides the Central Methodist congregation, members from the Park Avenue Baptist and St. Mathew's Lutheran churches will meet at the Central Methodist church Wednesday. Rev. Albert L. Linder, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will deliver the sermon.

The six churches meeting for union Thanksgiving services at the United Brethren church Thursday are First Methodist, First Christian, United Presbyterian, First Congregational, and United Brethren churches. Rev. E. F. Haglebarger, pastor of the First Christian church, will preach the sermon.

Rotary, Kiwanis Clubs Unite For Holiday Meeting

Mansfield Rotarians and Kiwanians joined in a meeting today at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, because of the Thanksgiving holiday coming on the regular meeting day of the Kiwanis club.

Kiwanians were also depended upon to provide the program, for which Gen Goodenough served as chairman. Charles Conklin directed the group singing, with William F. Black at the piano, and Rev. E. G. Corwin was the speaker. C. G. Hillier, president of the Rotary club, presided. A public address system, just installed in the hotel ballroom, was placed in use for the first time at this meeting.

With "We are thankful" as his subject, Rev. Corwin's talk was appropriate to the Thanksgiving season and emphasized four reasons for thankfulness, each of which was elaborated during the progress of the address.

Free public school education was placed first by the speaker in discussing reasons for thankfulness among Americans, as essential to the preservation and progress of democracy.

Privileges of self government, home life and freedom of worship were the other benefits of American citizenship touched upon by the speaker, who also directed attention to the danger of sometimes forgetting basic principles of democracy, except at times when these principles seem to be threatened.

Ohio Public Construction Work For Past Five Years Outlined.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Activities of the Works Projects Administration in Ohio during the past five years have erected 937 new public buildings and rehabilitated and improved 5,268 others, Dr. Carl Watson, state administrator, reported today.

Public schools were an important part of the program; 33 were erected, 1,726 improved, and additions were made on 115. Closely related was the construction of 329 new recreational buildings and the rehabilitation or enlargement of 223 more.

Health maintenance or improvement projects included the construction of five new hospitals, rehabilitation or improvement of 113 and construction of additions to six. Seven water-treatment plants, 68 sewage treatment plants, 38 pumping stations and two incinerator plants were installed, according to Watson's report.

Defense works included the construction and improvement of 13 air fields, three new armories, and improvements to 26 armories and to Fort Hayes and the Fort Erie ordnance depot.

GANGES REPORTS 100 PER CENT RED CROSS DRIVE ENROLLMENT

The village of Ganges today had the distinction of being the only 100 per cent Red Cross community in the county, for there is a membership for every adult in it.

Mrs. E. J. Peterson, Roll Call worker in that district, reported today that all but four adults in the village had joined the Red Cross and these four who were financially unable to join, were made up by other citizens who gave more than one membership.

Three memberships from other cities were received today, according to W. L. Birch, Roll Call chairman. Two came from former Mansfield residents now in Columbus, and one from Barberton.

Additional Mansfield concerns and offices that reported 100 per cent memberships today are:

Bushnell school staff, Mansfield Hardware and Supply company, Ne-Hi Bottling company, Holly shop, CIT corporation, General Finance company, Brook's Quality Apparel, Kobackers store, Western and Southern Insurance company, The Richland Trust company, Hursh drug store, The Citizens Savings and Loan company, Kevey, Inc., Ingram and Martin, Central drug store, Agricultural Conservation Association.

CONTRIBUTE TO NATIONAL FUND

Money Raised by N. Y. Will Be Used to Help English Women Find Homes.

Mansfield contributed $115 to the Y. W. C. A. national emergency fund during World Fellowship week, just ended, according to a report made to the Y. W. executive committee last night by Mrs. Paul Tappan who is in charge of the fund.

The fund is being raised over the United States for use by the English Y. W. to provide hotels for women. It will provide both recreation for women who are doing men's work in factories during the war, and relief for women who have been made homeless by the war.

Reports on other activities of the Y. W. were given at the meeting. Mrs. R. D. Iden, co-chairman of the recent membership drive, said that 600 adult merberships had been paid, but that reports were not complete.

Miss Lucy Wakeland, general secretary, reported that the free employment bureau of the Y. W. had listed 31 openings for household service during the month of October, with 23 persons placed. She also told members of the committee that during the past month there had been 98 group meetings at the Y. W. building with a total attendance of 2,652.

Mrs. F. L. Hanson told of forming a new publicity committee to handle posters and the making of motion and still pictures of Y. W. activities.

TAIL LIGHT

WICHITA, Kan.—(AP)—Noticing a steady glare in the rear vision mirror, Emmet Wagner, 40, drove his car to one side of the road expecting another to pass.

No car passed. Wagner looked again and saw flames.

He jumped out. His car virtually was destroyed by fire, probably caused by gasoline leaking on the exhaust pipe.

FIRST PARKING METER WILL MAKE ITS APPEARANCE TODAY

Mansfield's first parking meter was scheduled to make its appearance this afternoon along the curb on the southwest corner of South Walnut and East Second streets.

Elmer Luebbert, representative for the Michaels Art Bronze company, who arrived here yesterday said 141 machines had been delivered here and as soon as they could be unpacked installation would be started.

Luebbert expects to have all the meters installed by Wednesday evening. They will, however, not go into operation until Friday. Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said, metered parking will not be enforced on holidays and Sundays.

Meanwhile city council will meet tonight in special session on the call of Mayor William J. Locke to consider legislation providing for the employment of a parking meter collector and designating the Mansfield Savings Trust bank and clearing house for the coins collected.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, jr., said today he was preparing measures that provide for employment of a collector at a maximum salary of $135 a month, and another designated the Mansfield bank as a clearing house for the money at the monthly rate of $15. Funds for both functions are to be paid from anticipated meter revenue.

The meters are being placed for a nine month trial period during which time the city has contracted to pay $2.75 monthly, the amount to be applied on the purchase price of $49.50 per unit should council decide to buy the machines at the end of the trial period.

DRAFT BOARDS EXPECT TO FILL QUOTAS TODAY

Volunteers Will Make Up List From Two City Divisions; Men Leave Tuesday.

Richland county's first quota of nine men for military service probably will be filled by tonight with all but one or two of them taken from volunteers, draft board officials said today.

The county's three draft boards were scheduled to meet late today to classify the first men to return their questionnaires and choose nine to report Nov. 26 for a year's training. Each board will send three men.

It was probable that only draft board No. 3, serving the county rural areas, will have to draft any men to fill its first quota. That board has only two volunteers while the other two have 14 between them from which to draw.

The volunteers will be given physical examinations today or tomorrow at the offices of Mansfield physicians chosen by the state selective service organization.

Meanwhile, the first contingent of Ohioans who will go to camp this month was inducted into the army at Fort Hayes, Columbus today. First to report was Morris Canipe, 22, a Columbus bakery truck driver. He was a volunteer and was assigned military number 35,000,000.

The first 75 who reported today at Columbus received the best wishes of Gov. John W. Bricker, Adjt. Gen. Gilson D. Light, and other state dignitaries. Those who reported today included six men from Crawford county. The others were from Columbus, Cleveland and northeastern Ohio counties.

Two hundred more are scheduled to report Wednesday at Fort Hayes and Fort Thomas, Kentucky, 102 Friday at Fort Hayes, 171 next Monday at Fort Hayes and 100 at Fort Thomas, and 169 at Fort Hayes next Tuesday when the Richland county group will leave Mansfield.

The 44 questionnaires which had been returned today to the three county boards indicated that well over half of the men who registered will be deferred because of dependents. Of the first 10 men to return their blanks to board No. 3, only two did not list dependents.

Board clerks emphasized again that the questionnaires must be filled out with ink. They must be returned within five days after the registrants get them.

Failure to comply with the five-day ruling will bring a delinquency slip from the board. If it is ignored, the registrant will be brought in by force.

Walter Beckley, chairman of the No. 2 draft board, said today that the advisory board for his district can be contacted from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. daily at its headquarters on the third floor of the City building. There will be no charge for information given registrants who need help in filling out their questionnaires.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1940.

Remember also that it takes ups and downs to keep life from being a flat affair.

The Greeks also seem to have a word for that Italian invasion—and it sounds very much like "Scram."

The per capita circulation of money is now said to be $62.66—but it doesn't seem to be circulating fast enough.

When the Sign Says STOP, Stop!

THE SUNDAY traffic tragedy in Ontario was so clearly the result of carelessness that it may well be used as a warning to other motorists of the danger of disregarding stop signs, intended for their protection against just such "accidents."

Some drivers are apparently so constituted that they like to "take a chance," even when it places lives in jeopardy, as it is only such a trait that would account for the frequency with which stop signs are ignored in the city and, even more often in coming from side roads onto main highways, as was the case in the Sunday catastrophe in Ontario.

Complaint is sometimes made that state highway patrolmen seem over zealous in arresting motorists who fail to observe stop signs, yet it is probably this surveillance that serves to considerably reduce the number of traffic crashes due to this particular violation.

In Mansfield, however, there is no indication of police department interest in enforcing the "stop" requirement and, as a result, a drive of a few blocks on practically any street gives opportunity to witness several failures to observe a stop sign, and, because "nothing happens" it is done time after time, until finally SOMETHING DOES HAPPEN—that's the time you hear the ambulance siren and one or more persons may be seriously injured—possibly dead.

The requirement to STOP before entering a street or highway intersection is among the most essential motoring precautions—it should be faithfully observed, if for no higher motive than self-preservation.

Believe Britain Will Win

THERE has been an astonishing reversal of opinion about the Nazi war since the days of France's surrender, reports Leland Stowe of the Chicago Daily News. By this time people throughout the whole Balkan area believe Britain can win. Her demonstrated ability to "take it and see it through" has convinced them, he says, alike in the Balkan capitals and in Athens and Istanbul. He now finds them betting money on "an Anglo-Saxon victory."

That was written before the big British naval victory at Taranto, and it is probably the best news that Britain or America has heard in this war. The conflict is still far from conclusion. But the amazing fact that the Balkan peoples themselves, even while they are in virtual bondage to Hitler, believe in his inevitable defeat, makes the struggle easier and the result surer for those who have to bear the main burden of wiping this horror from the earth.

Half-Century of Continuous Service

CONDITIONS are so different now from what they were back in 1890 that it may be doubted if ever again a 63-year-old man will be awarded a 50-year service pin by a company for which he has worked a full half-century.

Such, however, was the unusual experience last evening of Homer K. Cronenwett, Mansfield resident, who entered the employ of the Standard Oil company at the age of 13 years and now has the distinction of being the only active employe of the company who has been in continuous service for that long a time.

Excerpts from a letter written to Mr. Cronenwett by W. T. Holliday, president of the Standard Oil company of Ohio, give an idea of the mutuality of interests recognized by employers and employes in this organization. In his letter Mr. Holliday said:

"Such length of active service means many things. It means, first of all, that the man must have been blessed with an exceptional physical inheritance. It means that through all the years he must have given conscientious service and that he has had a high sense of responsibility in carrying on the work assigned to him. On the company's side it means that the company has been successful over the years or it could not have provided continuity of service to its employes. It means that the company has a deep appreciation of conscientious service. It means that the employe, through all the years, has had respect for the management's honesty, fairness and ability, and that the management has had respect for the man's ability to do an honest day's work, and for his loyalty to the company.

"Our country is in great need of this mutual respect between employe and management. We feel that your 50 years of service is an outstanding indication of the feeling of goodwill that exists in our company."

Possibly most illuminating of the statements made at the testimonial dinner at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last evening, at which service pins were presented to twenty employes in the Mansfield district, was one made by Mr. Cronenwett in responding to the presentation of the 50-year service pin. Study the remark. You may find in it a possible solution of many present day problems. It was: "My work has been my hobby."

Guard Against Both Perils

MANY people continue to be fearful of Communism but go blithely along their way undisturbed by thoughts of Fascism or evidences of its activity in this part of the world. They forget that both Mussolini and Hitler used fear of Communism as their chief rally point in putting over Fascism and Nazism on their own people and a good many other nations thereafter.

This country needs neither of those undemocratic movements to protect it from the other or to solve any of its problems—economic, social or governmental. And it need fear neither of them if it sticks to first principles—the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights.

Last week was somewhat observed as National Education week, and—from the number of judicial ballots left unmarked—goodness knows, it was needed.

It now appears that the Rumania disaster was really caused by an earthquake—not by a Nazi secret weapon, as some had suspected.

According to at least one school of thought, "We are in eternity now"—but whether in the upper or lower regions is not revealed.

SLIM PICKINS

Listen World!

Look Up, Not Down

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

GLOOMY faces everywhere. Doleful forecasts.

"The English haven't a chance. The world's gone to the dogs. You can't trust anyone any more. It's a case of dog-eat-dog and we'll be the next to take the count. Just watch and see!"

Doomsday Blues! Makes you wonder what those fighting old Bearcats of '76 would have done if they'd had to buck such a tide of whimpers and wheezers. Makes you long to grab a stout pick-handle and give them something to cry about. Which is exactly what the Right Reverend Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen did in a fiery Catholic Centennial Mass in Los Angeles recently.

Tall, vibrant with faith and fury, he flashed across the news and told us out—Plenty! Showed us what spineless fraidy-cats we'd become, unworthy of our great privileges, derelict to our spendid tradition.

"All around us," he cried, "are people who are ceaselessly hating someone or something, shouting, 'Down with capitalism! Down with labor unions! Down with religion! Down with government! Down with economic royalists! Down with property! Down with this class! Down with that class!'

"BUT I SAY: UP FROM CLASS HATE! UP FROM ALL HATE! LET US STOP DOWNING THINGS, AND START LOOKING UP, UP, UP, UP TO GOD!"

Fighting words, Monsignor Sheen! God's blessing, and a nation's gratitude, for the wisdom and courage which lay behind them!

If ever this country needed a verbal shellacking, it's now. Many's the time we've faced the forces of evil. We were young, poorly armed, unversed in diplomacy, we've seen the death vultures circling above their prey.

But always we've risen like the eagles whose brave wings we bear, risen stout-hearted, with never a fear—circled and—SWOOPED!

BUT NOW, AT THE HEIGHT OF OUR SHREWDNESS, OUR WEALTH AND OUR POWER, WE COWER, AND SQUALL!

"DOWN . . . DOWN . . . DOWN!" It takes no great wisdom to see the viciousness of such a slogan. The greatest salesman knows you cannot put over a deal with a line like that. The most inexperienced young mother knows she cannot create a happy home or hold a loving husband with such an attitude.

YOU CANNOT BUILD ON THE DOWNBEAT!

YOU CANNOT WIN ON A WHINE!

If you have no faith in yourself or your purpose, you're easy pickings for the weakest enemy. And, believe me, the enemy is around you, listening to your every sniffle with all ears.

You say to yourself, "IF the war comes—"But the war HAS come! It is being decided right now, in your casual conversations, in your trivial acts. We have a mighty navy. In a short time we will have a mightier army, with a great hoard of guns, planes, and munitions. But if we continue to talk and think as we are talking and thinking now, they will come too late! For the Axis will know us for the Fade-out's we are.

The war is not the cause of our discontent. Long before Adolf grew his trick moustache we were getting this way.

IT IS NOT DEATH WE FEAR; IT IS LIFE. IT IS NOT CAPITALISM OR LABOR WE DREAD; IT IS REALITY.

With the turn of the century came easy money, swift success, soft living. The primitive, pioneer struggle was finished. Now we could sit pretty. We could let go. And we did!

Today we're crying "down." Because we haven't the honesty or courage to cry "UP!" We resent the challenge of this hard, swift, modern life. We don't want to look at things as they are. We want to "play pretend." Our cry of "Wolf! Wolf!" is only an alibi to hide the laziness and laxness within ourselves.

Cut out the phoney excuses! Stop pretending that everyone's picking on us! The world is as glorious today as it ever was. . . . It holds as much promise and adventure. There's vileness abroad, as there always has been, but the great crusades still call . . . and the stars still blaze above the horizon.

LIFT YOUR HEAD TO SEE THOSE STARS! ARM YOUR HEART TO FACE THOSE CRUSADES! STOP LOOKING FOR A HIDE-OUT OR AN ALIBI! DARE TO BELIEVE—AS OUR FATHERS BELIEVED — THAT LIFE IS AS GREAT AS WE'LL MAKE IT! DARE TO DEMAND A GREAT, A HEROIC LIFE—AND YOU'LL GET IT!

William May of Shelby was first Richland county victim of hunting accident, necessitating amputation of right hand.

Will M. Barton, Mansfield druggist, was improving after an operation at Lakeside hospital, Cleveland.

Mrs. John Agen, 84, died at her home on North Diamond street.

Girls of millinery department of the Bemo store were entertained by Miss Neva Detwiler.

C. E. McBride was speaker at meeting of United Brethren men's club.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, Nov. 19, 1935.

Jane Beelman was named president of the Sons of Union Veterans Auxiliary.

Theodore Troupe, 21, was first hunting victim in Richland county, for the year, suffering a wound of the right hand.

Announcement was made of the marriage of Miss Sophie Urschel and Clifford Ish, solemnized Nov. 16 at the Park avenue Baptist church.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Grubaugh, 108 Blanche street.

Miss Emily Burns was initiated into the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at Ohio State university and name editor of the Makio, school year book.

Timely Editorial

Foolish Behavior.

The eight theological students who tried to make martyrs of themselves by being sent to prison for refusal to register for selective service have merely succeeded in appearing foolish.

Had they registered, as required by law, they would have been exempted because of their profession. We do not see where their touted consciences would have been harmed in the slightest by this formality.

Conscientious scruples against actual participation in combat service are respected, under certain conditions. We have never been able to undrstand or respect those persons who are always prompt to take full advantage of benefits brought to them by the sacrifices and struggles of others, but who profess utter abhorrence to contributing something of their own.

Some 17,000,000 young Americans registered for the draft without protest. That was no indication they were all in favor of it. Many of them fervently hope they will never be called, but they are ready to go if their services are required.—Ohio State Journal.

This Is Ohio

CORN is king in Ohio—the most important crop from the standpoint of acreage and value of grain produced.

Harvested corn acreage totals 3,200,000 acres, accounting for about 30 per cent of all crop land in the state. Annual production amounts to 111,090,000 bushels, as of Oct. 1, 1940.

About two-thirds of all corn grown in the United States is produced in the 10 corn belt states—Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. Ohio production has averaged 135,000,000 bushels for the past 10 years.

As Others See It

Economic Law.

According to the way the average American thinks, if he doesn't save any money it isn't because he's spending too much, but because he isn't making enough.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Permanent Solidity.

An anxious inquirer wants to know whether there is any way to break up the solid South. None that we can be sure of, except to be patient and let it disintegrate.—Kansas City Times.

Grab Bag

One-Minute Test.

1. Where is the Mississippi river the widest?
2. How many glaciers are there in Glacier National park, in the United States?
3. What American statesman was the grandson of a king?

Hints on Etiquette.

If you see a girl living with another girl in college or sharing a flat don't leave your things lying about. Keep them hung up and your room and clothes closet tidy. Nothing is more annoying to one's partner in living than untidiness.

Words of Wisdom.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. At bankful stage it was widest 77 miles below Cairo, Ill., where it was 19,420 feet across when measured.
2. About 80.

Hundreds of Bundists Employed In West Coast Defense Plants

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Dies committee agents have secretly warned government authorities to be on guard against an outbreak of sabotage in defense plants on the West Coast.

According to the Dies-men, biggest U. S. danger spot is Los Angeles, where Nazi and Communist fifth columnists have been unusually active of late. The Los Angeles area contains one of the largest concentrations of defense work in the country.

One reason for the D-men's fear was their discovery of a secret mailing list of 2,500 names in a raid on the Los Angeles headquarters of the German-American Bund. Herman Schwinn, West Coast Bund fuehrer, admitted, under questioning, that the list consisted of Nazi sympathizers who regularly attended Bund meetings.

A check-up of the names revealed the startling fact that 800 of them are employed in airplane plants, shipyards, oil refineries, auto factories and other key defense industries.

One of the thickest dossiers in the Dies committee files concerns Schwinn and his activities, dating back to 1924, when he entered the country as a German immigrant. Among the items in his long record is an account of an extraordinary speech Schwinn made recently to Bundists in Hindenburg Park, Los Angeles.

Shrieking defiance against a federal court order revoking his citizenship, Schwinn is recorded as saying, "As long as I have a voice and a mike, I will damn well say what I please. The persecutions I have gone through in this country have made me a better German than I was before. They cannot stop us thinking, and feeling here is becoming stronger for Germany every day.

"There will be a new world order guaranteed by Germany, Italy and Japan, and the new order will come whether Churchill and Roosevelt like it or not."

Exit Joe Kennedy.

INTIMATES of Ambassador Joe Kennedy are offering bets that he will not return to the Court of St. James.

They are not taking much chance of losing money, for while publicly Joe has expressed his willingness to go back, the inside fact is that Kennedy tried to resign at his last conference with the president. Roosevelt firmly refused to consider it.

"Who could I send over in your place, Joe?" he protested.

Kennedy contended that he wasn't needed in London. "Judging by the amount of work I turned in during the last two months over there," he argued, "I'd say almost anyone could qualify for the job. You know I like to keep busy, but all I did over there was to sit around and watch the war."

But Roosevelt rejected this argument and insisted that Kennedy think it over "for a couple of weeks." From his private remarks since then, Kennedy still seems determined to quit.

Several very tempting business offers have been made to him; one from a large newspaper chain which he helped refinance several years ago. He has made no final decision, but returning to London definitely seems the last thing he intends to do.

Spanish Bribe.

THE career clique of fascist-minded appeasers inside the state department has dwindled in size and strength since Europe's tragic history proved the fallacy of their course in Spain. However, they are still strong enough to urge a loan (or gift) of $100,000,000 from the Export-Import Bank to General Franco, dictator of Spain.

Furthermore, it may be that the career clique will get away with it.

They urge that the hundred millions be advanced to Spain in order to keep Franco from coming into the war against England. They claim that if Spain has enough food, the country will remain neutral. And it is the British, whose fumbling in Spain was even more responsible than ours for the present danger to Gibraltar, who now want the United States to bail them out with a hundred million dollars.

Confidential military reports from Spain, however, indicate three things: 1st, the Spanish people are so fed up with three years of bloody civil war that they won't fight in any foreign war not of their choosing; 2nd, Spain is so badly defended that her harbors would be easy targets for the British fleet; 3rd, the Spanish people actually are near revolt, which is the secert reason why Franco wants the hundred million. Without food, the old Loyalist government might come back again.

In other words, it looks as if the career clique inside the state department is still trying to keep in power the man they secretly backed during the Spanish civil war.

Note—It is unlikely that Hitler wants Spain to come into the war—yet. Spain has been too valuable as a neutral through which supplies, foreign agents, and even food could be smuggled. Much of Spain's food shortage comes because Franco used wheat to pay for arms he received from Germany.

Probability is that if the British put arms in the hands of Franco's growing political opposition, they would have an army in Spain which would completely neutralize the Axis there. The Loyalists are still ready to fight, but against Franco, not for him.

Dr. Townsend Appeases.

The gaunt tycoon of the old age pension movement, after wangling a letter from Senator McNary which promised nothing, but which Townsend claimed was an endorsement of pensions, plumped for Wendell Willkie. Whereupon Downey, who is the No. 1 Townsendite on Capitol Hill, and who had been cool to the third term, jumped vigorously into the fray on the president's side.

And the Californian cut a lot of ice. He not only offset the "old Doc" among his followers, but was an antidote to Senator Hiram Johnson when he came out for Willkie. Downey also put in some telling licks for Senator Bob LaFollette in his very uncertain battle for reelection.

Townsend, who tries to run his movement with an iron fist, was very peeved at Downey's independence and when the senator tried to see the "old Doc" in Chicago during the campaign, Townsend gave him the cold shoulder. But the election returns changed Townsend's mind.

This was the second presidential fight in which he took a licking. In 1936 he had teamed up with Father Coughlin behind William Lemke, who wound up with a few hundred thousand votes. Also, the big Democratic congressional victory was no solace to Townsend. So he hot-footed it to Washington and, hat in hand, went to Downey's office and made his peace.

However, he still has to placate a number of Democratic members of the pension bloc in the house. During the campaign some of them talked of replacing Townsend with someone more politically adept.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This is a great town for going out with your business clients and kicking the gong around. Give the boys a good time, and you'll get dividends on your investment.

Perhaps this is true. It must be, or else a lot of people I know wouldn't keep on doing it.

For example:

One of my friends is a real estate agent, a pretty big one. Three or four times a year he gathers in a dozen or twenty of his clients and brings them to New York. He takes them to football games at box seat prices, $6.60 each. Before the game, of course, there are lunch and drinks, plus cab fares all over Manhattan.

After the game the party retires to a hotel where a large suite has been reserved for freshening up and drinks. After about two hours they pile into cabs and go to a night club. They arrive at 7:30 and remain until 2 a. m., during which time a dozen or so uninvited guests join the party for a few drinks or so. . . . The 'day, altogether, costs about $600.

The man who throws these parties is a successful business man. . . . He makes money . . . Spending it this way must pay dividends, but I wonder whether he wouldn't make money in any case . . .

* * *

FAVORITE periods for such wooing of clients are during the big shows — the automobile show, the flower show, the power show, etc. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent on entertainment and the bill levied against "promotion and advertising."

I know a man who works for a ball bearing company . . . Airplanes, automobiles, printing presses can't get along without ball bearings . . . This man has an unlimited expense account. He is supposed to invite a lot of people into the city. This means hotel reservations, plus theaters, plus everything in the form of entertainment that New York has to offer . . . . The bill is staggering . . . To me, I mean, it is staggering . . . But this fellow does it three or four times a year, and his company is in the money. They say it is sound business . . .

* * *

AT THE last power show there was one party of 12 men. Some of them arrived by train. . . . Two flew from the middle west. In advance, 12 sets of tickets were reserved for three of the leading musical shows on Broadway . . . Tickets to a musical show cost $4.40 each . . . . Reservations in several night clubs had been made. You cannot begin to entertain a man in a night club for less than $10. . . . There were reservations at hotels. It cost a small fortune to finance this party but after it was over my friend expressed himself as well pleased with the way things had worked out. These men represented business connections. He was insulating them from his competitors and reported that the four or five days of painting the town red would leave him sitting pretty for months to come.

I believe him . . . But I still do not understand why.

Daily Bible Thought

And his mercy is on them, that fear him from generation to generation.—Luke 1:50.

A Farmer's Diary

Work After Supper

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I CAME HOME tired and hungry at nearly dark. The round full moon was coming up above the valley's rim. Our boys, having done their evening chores, were playing football on the lawn. Their mother moved back and forth across the lighted window, preparing the evening meal. Presently she called that supper was ready. The bell was dropped—I forgot to observe the moonlight—we all trooped in over the low threshold to gather about the table.

The wood supply is low," I said. "Suppose we work after supper—what do you say?" All the boys volunteered to help.

No longer hungry, I went up the slope, a little later, to where we cut an apple tree some days ago. The trunk had been trimmed up, but must be sawed and split. The oldest boy followed me, bringing matches to light a fire. The sky in the west was a pale clear green. The moonlight was bright. The air we breathed felt clean and cold, deep in our lungs.

While I swung the ax, he built a fire near by, piling on seasoned twigs, and then, when the blaze was hot, green new-cut branches. We both stood atop the heap to press down the mat of green twigs to where the fire was burning. There was no wind. Thick blue smoke billowed up, permeating our clothing and making our eyes red and watery.

We sawed in relays, near the roaring singeing flames, until we made several cuts off the fallen trunk. While we worked the little boys, five and three, attracted by the light and the sound of activity, came up the steep path like chattering shadows, stood by until their little cheeks were red with heat, then helped to bring more brush from a greater distance.

After half an hour, their mother called to them that it was their bedtime. A few moments more and I saw the oil lamp gleam from the window of the loft and knew that two little fellows were tucked in for the night. Another hour and the oldest followed down the slope and I was left alone with my work and the welcome fire.

Frozen dew sparkled all about. The crackling fire grew less until with a stiff branch I pushed the burned off ends upon the glowing center and the flame leaped high again. When this last pile had been consumed, a mound of coals remained, with bluish tongues of flame hovering about the surface. I rolled a heavy chunk up to sit upon and warmed myself, feeling strangely rested and content, strangely primitive—and greatly blessed.

Alimony On Way Out

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

If there are minor children or the woman is ill or incapable of earning her livelihood, judges take these things into consideration and award maintenance to children, and sometimes alimony. But if the woman is young, husky, and seems intelligent enough to earn a living, there's increasingly less chance of alimony. Some states have marked it off the statute books altogether.

A short time ago a case came up in the New York courts in which an unemployed glazier was given ninety-nine years in which to pay back alimony of $2,578 to his first wife. Supreme Court Justice John J. McCoy, in Brooklyn, decreed that the unemployed glazier could pay his back alimony at the rate of fifty cents a week, for 5,156 weeks. This would take nearly a hundred years to pay off the debt.

The brief newspaper story did not relate the troubles of the glazier and his first wife, only stating that after hearing a recital of the defendant's debts, Justice McCoy gave him plenty of time to pay his overdue alimony.

Such a case as this is the spur which urges girls who read this column to equip themselves with some sort of trade, knowledge of how to hold down a job, or, if they are ambitious, to study for a profession before contracting one of those 'teen age marriages where the world looks like the Garden of Eden with the apple trees still in blossom.

Granted that your marriage may be the happiest on record, world conditions are so absolutely unsettled that economic security is by no means assured.

The United States government has taken these things into consideration. In nearly every town and village in these United States, courses of study are offered to people anxious to become self-supporting or to patch up holes in a defective education, which ended for some of them in one of the grade schools.

If you're interested in furthering your education, you may consult your local superintendent of schools. If there is nothing in your local curriculum that you feel would help, write to me, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I will give you the name of your state representative who will tell you where to get the educational information in which you are interested.

Today it's the smart thing for every girl, no matter how well-to-do her parents may be, or what her social background is, to have a job, preferably a job that gives work to others, such as running her own business, or a profession. If she hasn't a pay envelope job, she can go as a probationer to a hospital, to take up nursing against the day when she may be called upon, even as her brother has been drafted, for training. Or she goes in for some good, robust type of philanthropy. Wasteful, idle women are outmoded today.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Marion! Marion!" I called frantically again and again, although knowing that nothing I could do at the farmhouse could change the situation one whit, I could only pray that Dicky would be in time.

I was about to hang up the receiver and rush back to Katherine for consultation when I heard another voice over the telephone, calling "Oh! Mrs. Graham. Don't hang up! Can you hear me?"

"Yes, Mrs. Ticer," I returned, for the frantic voice was that of my neighbor. "Did my husband get there in time?"

"No, he didn't," she said. "That awful man grabbed her and hustled her out of here, and got her in the car just as Mr. Graham rounded the curve. The driver of the man's car had the motor running, all ready to go, and honestly, Mrs. Graham, it would have made the sight leave your eyes to see the way that man fairly threw Marion into the car, and piled in himself while the driver set it going. And they just streaked it down the road, with Mr. Graham racing after them like mad."

"Was anybody with Mr. Graham?" I asked faintly, for a sudden, panicky fear had come to me. Dicky was alone, but I knew that he would stop at nothing to rescue his old friend's daughter from the thralldom of the man who evidently had some domination over her, and from the consequences of her own folly.

I have learned to judge voices, and that of the man who had spoken so peremptorily was that of a real or potential criminal. I would have staked much upon it. And he had another man with him, the driver, who no doubt was in whatever mischief was brewing.

Two against one! The cards were stacked against Dicky unless—I listened breathlessly for Mrs. Ticer's answer to my query.

"No, he was alone in the car," she said, and my spirits sank to the nadir again.

"Mrs. Graham!" My good neighbor's voice was troubled as she spoke my name.

"Yes, Mrs. Ticer."

"I feel so bad that I couldn't stop Marion. But I want you to know I did the best I could. When she came in here, she was so fussed up she was almost hysterical, and she said: 'Mrs. Ticer, I want to telephone Auntie Madge terribly, but there's a reason why she musn't know where I am, and I must go away again as soon as I've telephoned. Will you let me use your telephone and promise me not to say anything to Auntie Madge about my being here until after I'm gone? If you don't promise, I can't telephone, and I want to have Auntie Madge get word to Mother that I'm safe and all right. You see she doesn't know where I am. I left college four days ago, and I couldn't tell her before.'

"I knew there was something awful wrong," my neighbor went on, "for I was looking out the window when the car drew up, and I saw the man with Marion, and he was a bad one if I ever saw one. But I didn't see how I'd get anywhere by not letting her telephone. If Sam and Jerry had been home to deal with the men in the car, I'd have grabbed her and locked her up in a room until you folks could get here. But I was all alone and so I gave her my promise and let her use the telephone. I hope you don't think I did wrong."

"No, indeed," I assured her warmly. "It was the only thing you could do."

"I racked my brain to try to think of some way to let you know where she was. And then, like a flash it came to me that if I shooed the cat out loud enough, you would hear my voice and the cat's name, and figure out the rest for yourself. You heard me, didn't you?"

"Indeed I did," I assured her, "and Mr. Graham started over there right away. If he catches up with them it's all due to you. And now, will you keep your telephone as clear as you can for the rest of this emergency? I may want to call you at any minute."

(Continue Tomorrow.)

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Nov. 20.

Splendid opportunities for attaining high goals are presaged for this day according to the lunar transits. It is an auspicious time for approaching employers, superiors, executives, all those in power and prestige who may be disposed to assist in advancement, in capitalizing new propositions, or otherwise demonstrating signs of confidence, esteem and preferment. If such projects are to be manipulated by group action be tactful and discreet, with, possibly, the intuitions safely accepted for guidance. Shun impetuosity, irritability and headstrong tactics. Placate rather than force issues.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to seek promotion, opportunity for reaching desired objectives, with the substantial co-operation of employers, superiors and those in authority, whose financial support and personal confidence may be required. But approach these with amiability and poise rather than impetuosity, aggressive and vexatious methods. Shun strife, impatience and dictatorial behavior, especially where the aid of groups may be required. It would not be amiss to be guided by intuitions or subtle leadings.

A child born on this day should be energetic, imperious and masterful, given to turbulence and strife, rather than tact and subtlety, which would serve better in contacts with its superiors, who may be friendly, disposed to promote and favor.

Time to Plan Stuffing For Bird

By BETSY NEWMAN.

Thanksgiving dinner is to be planned for in this week's menus. If you are having turkey, stuff it with sausage dressing; if goose, make a raisin and apple stuffing; and if you serve pork roast instead of fowl, a sage and onion dressing is nicest, in my estimation, and of course you serve apple sauce with it.

Today's Menu.

Grapefruit and Cherry Cocktail
Roast Turkey, Goose or Pork
Whipped Potatoes
Cranberry Jelly
Creamed Lima Beans or Succotash
Pickles
Pumpkin Pie or Mince Pie
Cheese Salted Nuts Coffee

* * *

Grapefruit and Cherry Cocktail

You can use fresh or canned grapefruit and canned, maraschino or candied cherries. Chill grapefruit thoroughly and put sections into sherbet glasses, add cherries on top, and, in case you use canned cherries, use a little of the juice over cocktail for coloring. Serve with tiny crackers.

* * *

Raisin and Apple Stuffing for Turkey or Duck.

2 cups seeded raisins
2 cups finely chopped sour apples
3 cups stale bread cubes
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
Dash pepper
Water to moisten

Combine ingredients in order named, toss together lightly and season to taste.

* * *

Sausage Dressing.

1 cup cooked sausage meat
2 cups dried breadcrumbs
1 tsp. sage
1 tbsp. chopped onion
Salt and pepper to suit taste
Hot water to moisten

If sausage has not been cooked, brown in hot frying pan, drain off excess fat, add bread crumbs and other ingredients, season well and moisten slightly.

* * *

Chestnut Dressing.

1 lb. chestnuts
1 tsp. salt
2½ cups bread cubes
1 tbsp. onion
1 tbsp. green pepper
Dash pepper
1-3 cup butter

Cut slit in each chestnut, put them in flat pan with 1 tablespoon salad oil, shaking nuts in pan to cover well with oil. Bake in hot over, 450° F. for 10 minuttes. Remove from oven, slip off outer skins and cook in boiling water, covered, until tender. Drain and force through potato ricer. Add salt, bread cubes, chopped green pepper, chopped onion and melted butter. Season well. This will be enough for a 5-pound fowl.

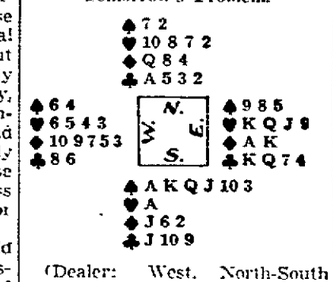
* * *

Succotash.

Lime beans
Butter
Corn
Salt, pepper

Allow equal proportions of lima beans and corn. If both are canned, mix well together, heat through, season with melted butter, salt and pepper. When both are uncooked, cook lima beans for a few minutes first, then add corn and continue cooking until both are tender, season and serve.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If East wins the club lead, dummy ducking, then two diamonds, and returns the heart K, can South make 4-Spades on this deal, and if so, how?

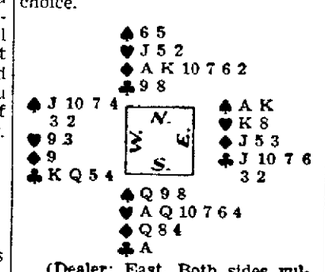
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TRY TO FIGURE EXACTLY

When an opponent has made a palpable sacrifice bid against you, exactness in estimating the probabilities of the situation is at a premium. It is then you want to be as precise as possible in your deductions. For your first must appraise the likelihood of setting him, as well as the score to come from the number of tricks you will beat him, and you then figure out the chances of going ahead successfully with your side's own declaration, at a level higher than you had expected to bid. After weighing what score seems likely one way against the apparent result the other way, you make your choice.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1♣	1♥	1♠	2♦
3♣	3♥	3♠	4♥
Pass	Pass	5♣	Pass
Pass	5♥

East and West had some close estimating to do on this deal. As it turned out, they were exactly right in passing the 5-Hearts. Either overcall they could have made would have produced a set of 800 points, or three tricks doubled. If they tried 5-Spades, they would have lost five tricks, one in trumps, two in hearts and one in each minor. At 6-Clubs they would have lost four, two in hearts and one in each minor. They were correct also in not doubling, as it was plain from South's second bid, a force, that he thought his side could go somewhere.

South really had a harder decision than his opponents. He was Clem Read, veteran Knickerbocker Whist club player, striving for the Metropolitan pair championship with Joseph M. Rothchild, an able partner. He knew the opponents reckoned they were sacrificing at 5-Clubs, and had to decide whether to double them or not.

Mr. Read estimated the set at probably two tricks, not as much as his side's game would be worth. So his main problem was to figure whether he could make 5-Hearts. On the bidding, it seemed he could count on North for a spade honor, so that there would be probably one loser in that suit, and probably only one loser in hearts or diamonds. It turned out that North had two spade losers, but the compensating strength with his other cards, so that the winning trump finesse decided the result.

IMPROVE BOTTLES

Even articles of everyday use are subject to streamlining in this day of change. Latest product to be improved upon is the familiar prescription bottle. First fundamental change in prescription ware in more than half a century, the wider base of the new bottle gives it a lower center of gravity and prevents it from tipping over easily. Its handy, compact size allows it to fit readily on shelves or in purses or pocketbooks. It is "drip proof," non-slip and has plenty of space for labels.

CHAPTER XLI.

"No; because he's—the friend I was visiting is dead. He died a few weeks ago. But I can prove it, I can prove it," Jocelyn said anxiously, forestalling his interruption. "The men in the garage who went to get my car out of the mud, they'd remember. They'd have a record of it. It was about half past five o'clock on the morning of the Sunday before Thanksgiving, and Mr. Scudder here was driving back to the city, and he gave me a lift. And you told me, Scudder—don't you remember?—that you had a little boy named—I think I can remember his name; wasn't it Bruce? And you said that your little girl named Florence had died—"

"Yes, sir; we lost our little girl," Scudder said suddenly, his weak eyes filling with tears. "She wasn't nothing but a baby when we lost her."

"He told you this?" Napthaly asked Jocelyn.

"While he was driving me down to the station."

Think he was drunk?"

"I knew he'd been drinking."

"And how's it happen you've got this date fixed in your mind, Miss Britton?"

"Because—well, I have every reason to remember it. It was an important date to me. I was going to my aunt's for Thanksgiving dinner, and I went over that afternoon to her house."

"Tell her about it?"

"No."

"Didn't tell her you'd started home at five o'clock in the morning and your car had broken down?"

"No."

"Didn't tell anyone?"

"Yes; I did. I told Mr. Philip Fordyce. The man I am going to marry."

"Say, weren't you going to be married today?" the attorney asked, diverted by sudden curiosity.

"Yes, we were. But of course—if I can do anything to help Mr. Scudder—"

* * *

She felt a sudden forlornness and loneliness as she said it. She was burning her bridges behind her. Tears came into her eyes.

The attorney looked down at some penciled notes he had made. "Know a man named Boston, Scudder?" he asked.

"Bridgie Boston, yes, sir; I do," the little man answered, pitifully eager and bewildered by uncomprehending hope.

"You said you'd won a turkey and he had it," Jocelyn prompted eagerly.

"That's right; that went clean out of my head," Scudder agreed, light breaking at last into his weary eyes. "That's right. He had my turkey, and I thought maybe if I got it and brought it home to Eda maybe she'd get over her mad. That's right. But I never seen Bridgie that night—" he added, puzzled again.

"You said you couldn't find the house. But surely he'd remember about the turkey," Jocelyn said.

"Where is he—Bridgie Boston?" Napthaly asked. "By George, we may have this case broken!" he added, half aloud.

"He and his folks have gone to Las Vegas. He's workin' on the Boulder Dam."

Napthaly came back; he had two other men with him. One of them was Mat Phillips, the district attorney.

"Court was adjourned. We have been dismissed until next Wednesday," said Napthaly. He looked excited. The district attorney sat down and asked Jocelyn questions; the other man made notes. She told them all she could. But she was showing the effect of the reaction already, her eyes blazed in a pale face she answered sometimes nervously sometimes after hesitation.

"I had dined with a friend, a man friend, in Mr. Covington Keeble's studio in Piedmont. I had thought that other friends were to be there. Yes, it was raining hard. I started home about ten o'clock, but my car slipped on a bank in the mud and I couldn't start it."

"Your friend went for help?"

"No. No, he went with me. I had left him at the cabin."

"And started to drive home alone? He didn't offer to come with you?"

"No. I didn't tell him I was going. I just left."

"But that was a half hour later," said Phillips. "It didn't take you, by your own account, half that time to get to your car. Where were you all that time?"

"I was in my car. I had a blanket."

"You didn't go back to the—" He glanced at his notes. "—the Keble cabin?" he asked.

"No. I couldn't have found it. It was pitch dark and raining. And I was miles away."

"And Scudder here"—he always mentioned the cringing little prisoner with a sort of easy contempt—"Told you about his girl and his boy, did he?"

"The girl, the child who died, was never mentioned in the case before, Matt," said Napthaly. The other man looked at him thoughtfully, nodded his head slowly.

"I know, I know; that's a point," he conceded. "Now! What was the name of the man with whom you dined that night," he demanded suddenly. "I see in Mr. Napthaly's notes here that he has since died."

"Yes, he died some weeks ago."

"And that was—?"

Jocelyn swallowed with a dry throat.

"That was Mr. Kent Dunham."

"Mr. Kent Dunham." The district attorney looked up with a sudden light in his eyes. "Didn't he—wasn't that the fellow who killed himself down on some place in Burlingame—down on the Fordyce place?" he said. Long before he had finished his question he had answered it himself; he set the note down with a satisfied nod. "I see—" he said ruminatively. "Well, Scudder," he added, "I think you're sitting pretty. If you were over in Piedmont on that Sunday morning at half past five, then you hadn't anything to do with that affair in San Jose Avenue. We'll wire this man Boston and get him on the telephone this afternoon. Now, Miss Britton, where can we get hold of you if we need you, and where can we locate Mr. Fordyce?"

"Mr. Fordyce—" she was beginning uncertainly, when the door opened and Philip came in. Jocelyn felt the panic terror of a child caught red-handed in mischief; then her heart returned gloriously to a normal beat, and she managed a smile that was close to tears.

* * *

He had given her only a friendly glance, but that was all she wanted! Now he was greeting the other men.

"Hello, Matt, got my girl in jail, did you? Hello, Sidney. How's all this going, Jocelyn?"

Joy flooded back into her soul; he wasn't angry. He was going to shoulder the whole thing, to save them all. Jocelyn clung to Philip's hand.

"Well, it does, Mr. Fordyce; it does, Phil," said the district attorney cautiously. "That is, if we can check on these dates. I wish you'd come in with this evidence before. We've got this thing started; we've got our jury and everything. This would have made a difference. This would have made a big difference. We've got the time of that murder fixed at five o'clock. Now you and Miss Britton say you met while she was waiting for the six o'clock train. How d'you happen to remember the time?"

"I remember the time I took my car out of the garage at the Wahneta club. And I suppose the garage would have that down, wouldn't they, Matt?"

"The man's bringing the book from the other garage here now. I'll call the Wahneta."

"Someone said the trial would be put over until Wednesday."

"Why, hell," Matt said pathetically, with great simplicity, "There won't be any trial now. We've got to go at this from another angle. I'll get right onto this and see how soon we can turn Scudder loose. I hope you get that, Mr. Scudder? You can thank this lady for saving your life; do you get that?"

"You understand, Matt," Philip said, "that it was the merest accident that Miss Britton and I came over into Judge Toward's court yesterday. I was turning over the guardianship of young Leslie Baker; his father made Judge Troward co-guardian with me, you know, and Miss Britton came into the court with me to wait until I could speak to the judge. Something that was said made her remember what had happened last November; otherwise she never would have known of Scudder's trial at all; So we'll be here now if you want us. You have her statement? You'll want one from me. It's just to the effect that I happened to pass the Piedmont station at six o'clock that Sunday morning, picked her up, and heard from her the same story she's told here."

"That's all you'll have to say, Phil."

"We're being married at four o'clock today, and we'll go off somewhere near—Del Monte, probably. I'll keep in touch with you. I'd have been here with Miss Britton," said Philip, "but I had to meet my daughter. She just got in on the Matsonia."

"I hope I can do somthing for you folks someday!" Scudder, by degrees assimilating the meaning of all this, said with sudden passion. Jocelyn, standing now, with Philip beside her, laughed with tears in her eyes. "I hope you'll never know what it is to stand in the shadow of death," added the little prisoner feelingly.

"I'll bet you folks were going away on a honeymoon," said the district attorney, with compunction. "I'll tell you, you wait here a minute, Phil. Step over to court and wait, until I see if I can get in touch with Mahoney, Lynch," he said to one of the officers, "I think very probably this prisoner will be discharged this afternoon, if I can get in touch with Judge Mahoney. If not they'll probably let him go Monday. I'll be back in half an hour."

"I wish you luck!" Jocelyn said cordially, extending her hand to Scudder.

* * *

She and Philip went back into the courtroom and took two of the round-backed chairs. The place was empty now. She wondered if Scudder would go back to Carson City and his barber's chair; she wondered what the little boy would think of this story someday when his father told it.

"I know how he feels," she said.

"You!" Philip had lighted a cigaret; she knew that he was happy.

"I knew, the minute you opened that door, Phil, how poor Scudder felt. It was salvation, when I thought I was drowning alone in a big cold sea. To have you come in, so easy, so sure of yourself—but then you're always that!"

"I don't remember being so decent, down on the wharf, Jocelyn.

"You had reason, then. And believe me, I wasn't enjoying it," Jocelyn said. "I think while I was coming up here in a taxi I would have given my life to get out of what I had to do. My life! That wouldn't have worried me. But one's life never counts in those times. I had to go and drag myself down and drag you down, and Norma, and give your mother and Sandy and Janet just the weapons they've been wanting. I had to lower myself to Norma," Jocelyn went on, very close to him, one hand holding to the button of his overcoat, her beautiful eyes raised to his own. "I was to be the influence in her life that was going to steady and protect her, poor Norma, and now she'll know that I am pointed at myself, that I did just what we've always warned her not to do!"

"But you came up here," he said, with his slow smile, "you faced the music. You don't know how I loved you for it, how my heart went to you when I saw you walking away. I knew I was wrong when I said we'd wait and see how the case went. We couldn't have waited. We had to see him through. Coming just when Norma's news came, coming the very day of our wedding, it upset me. I've had lots to worry about, Jocelyn; things sprung on me make me nervous. Did you think that they'll tie all this in with Dunham's death?"

"That was the first thing I thought of."

"And that was the first thing I thought of. But we'll face 'em together, darling, and maybe they'll whip us through the market place and tear every rag of clothing off us, and we'll live through it. And then we'll get Norma away and get her business over, and live through that, too. And then you'll be Mrs. Philip Fordyce of Burlingame, raising a family of kids, liking a few families and being bored by most of 'em, going to New York with me, giving dinners, and thumbing your little nose—that is your nose that I just kissed, isn't it?—at the whole crowd."

"Oh, Phil," she said breathlessly, "if you feel that way, I'd rather have it start like this! I'd rather let them know that we aren't afraid. It was only when I thought I might lose you—I thought you were angry at me—"

"You're never going to lose me."

"Then I don't care!" His arms was about her now; they were in one chair.

* * *

The district attorney came back with another, older man, and Philip stood talking with them for a few minutes in a low tone. Jocelyn watched; was relieved to hear Philip presently laugh. Then all three turned to her.

"I wish you all the luck in the world, Miss Britton," Phillips said. "I've known this boy since he was in law college, and you certainly are getting one prince of a husband."

"Thank you," said Jocelyn, radiant.

"They think they won't need us any more," Philip said. "Matt here says that we can make for the Canadian backwoods this afternoon without being followed by a posse, which is always nice on a honeymoon. And that's that, Jocelyn," Philip added, when they had come out into a world miraculously bright and friendly and safe, and were in his car going to her Aunt Nell's at Sausalito; "that's all, I believe, we'll ever hear of that. They'll put it on the record; they'll throw the charge against Scudder out, and we'll be in Banff, the happiest people in the world. Of course, someday," he went on, "some one may dig up the story, some woman may ask you how well you knew Dunham and if you didn't testify in the Scudder trial—"

"And all I'll have to do is laugh," Jocelyn said, resting against his arm in complete content.

"Exactly."

"Phil, I am so glad I did it! I hadn't any idea it would be so important, but I knew I had to do it."

"I knew it, too, as soon as you were gone. I only waited at the dock until a few people had seen me welcoming Norma, and the press had taken some pictures of me welcoming Norma, and then I turned her over to Mother and beat it after you."

"Your mother was there?"

"Oh yes; she turned up—late; she's going to be at the wedding, trust her! She's carried Norma off to lunch—my lord, Jocelyn, we've not had any lunch, have we? We've got just two hours before we're married. Will you lunch with me at Fisherman's Wharf, Miss Britton? This is the last meal I can buy you, because after this I'll have to have my wife along."

"I hear that your wife is crazier about you than any human being ever was about anyone before," Jocelyn suggested, thoughtfully.

"If she isn't now,'" he said seriously, "you can bet she's going to be. Twenty-five years from today I'll prove it!"

The fog was gone now. Philip turned the car toward the water front and Fisherman's Wharf, and the steep streets fell away below them, and all the world looked washed and bright in the glory of the sunshine.

Murray Only Likely Candidate for CIO Presidency

WANTS UNION TO TAKE VOTE AGAINST REDS

Joins Hillman In Opposition To Communists In Office of Labor Groups.

(By Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Philip Murray, gray, quiet spoken Pittsburgh labor leader was the only man talked about today in CIO's national convention as a successor to John L. Lewis in the CIO presidency, but informed labor leaders said Murray had not yet agreed to take the post.

As the convention began consideration of Lewis's stewardship, over the past year, there were increasing reports that Murray would be reluctant to assume the CIO presidency if the convention failed to take a stand against Communism, or signify its willingness to reopen unity negotiations with the American Federation of Labor.

The question of CIO policy toward Communism and the employment of officials who belong to Communist, Nazi or Fascist groups has been raised in the convention by Vice President Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers union.

Hillman, labor member of the national defense commission, is an outspoken critic of Communist, Nazi and Fascist sympathizers in union organizations. He declared in a pre-convention statement that labor must "make sure that those who hold official positions have no divided loyalties."

The clothing workers have proposed that CIO's constitution be amended to prohibit the employment in CIO offices of any one who is a member of Communist, Nazi or Fascist organizations.

Lewis in his opening convention speech yesterday labelled as a "lie" any assertion that CIO policies "are conceived and endorsed and supported and engineered and administered by the adherents of Communism, Nazi or Fascist philosophy."

One of Lewis' aides said the organization's policy up to now has been that CIO members are entitled to their personal political beliefs, so long as they did not take precedence over CIO's labor policies.

Lewis, acclaimed yesterday in a 40-minute demonstration before announcing he would fulfill his pre-election promise to step down as CIO president if President Roosevelt were reelected, asked delegates to support his successor "without stint."

HOUSING PROGRAM

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Loss of jobs by perhaps 5,000,000 men when this country returns to a peace economy was predicted today by Federal Housing Administrator Nathan Straus.

Plans to prevent such wholesale unemployment, Straus said in an address prepared for delivery at the American Federation of Labor convention, should include a public housing program of about 500,000 homes a year at the end of the defense emergency.

"I am not speaking of something theoretical or even problematical," said Straus in suggesting that in preparing against war this country should also prepare for peace. "I am speaking of an event which is as certain as death or taxes."

He said:

"Let us plan now to take up the slack in employment that is sure to occur by a program of useful public works, thoughtfully conceived and carefully worked out now to provide maximum benefits at minimum costs."

Bubbly Wine Bath In Columbus Club Barred By Mayor

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— If Tirza wants to take a wine bath in public, she'll have to do it outside the Columbus city limits.

The shapely night club dancer whose specialty calls for ablutions in sparkling burgundy has been denied permission by Mayor Floyd Green to bring her "act" to a downtown night club.

"I'm sorry but my answer has to be 'No,'" the mayor told Miss Tirza.

"After all, I wear a bathing suit . . ." Tirza began.

But Mayor Green walked away, remarking "the case is closed."

Orders New Lighting In Senior High Gym

One of the Richland county draft boards will receive a card sometime this week exempting a Mansfield youth from being conscripted from this county during the present emergency, and the board will offer no arguments about it either. The card will come from West Point where the youth, Alvin M. Bachrach, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Bachrach, 33 Helen avenue, is in his second year. Bachrach signed a card at the school last week which placed him on U. S. army records as an enlisted man, exempting him from draft duty.

Even out of a tragedy comes some good. Orphans at the Richland county Children's home feasted on rabbit last night. Sixteen of the cotton-tails made a pretty fancy meal for the youngsters. They had been in the possession of a hunter whose car was involved in a collision at Ontario Sunday and state highway patrolmen turned them over to the home.

Brought to police headquarters at midnight on a speeding charge, an embarrassed Springfield youth, who was returning from a hunting trip, had to take up a collection among his four young women guests to get the necessary $25 appearance bond. "I knew something would happen when I had such good luck hunting today," the youth lamented.

A group of Mansfield badminton enthusiasts can play their favorite game in the Johnny Appleseed junior high school gymnasium this winter if they are willing to pay $10 a night to use the gym. Following a long discussion last night, the board of education set the $10 charge, limited the group to 40, and decided to rent the gymnasium for badminton only three hours a night one night a week.

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE MEETS

2 Members Added To Executive Committee; Vote To Back Ramspeck Bill.

Two new members were named to the executive committee of the Richland County League of Women Voters last night when the committee met at the home of Mrs. Kathryne Bancroft, Park avenue west, president of the league.

Miss Ruth Dunham was elected secretary to serve out the unexpired term of Mrs. Ben Esgar who resigned this fall when she moved to Cleveland. Mrs. Herbert H Schettler, named to head the child welfare committee, replaces Mrs. Ward Ingraham for the unexpired term which ends next April.

The resignation of Mrs. David Boals was accepted but no appointment was made to fill the vacancy.

The committee decided last night to work vigorously for the passage of the Ramspeck bill now pending in congress and to attack the Nicholas amendment which was attached to it in the house of representatives.

Mrs. Bancroft said that every member of the Richland county league would be acquainted with the facts concerning the bill and asked to talk for it among friends.

The Ramspeck bill is more familiarly known as the extended Civil service bill and would take more than 200,000 government jobs out of politics and put them on the merit system. The bill, which passed the senate has been badly crippled in the house by the Nicholas amendment which proponents of the bill say would defeat the purpose and permit political patronage to control these jobs despite the fact that they were under Civil service. Mrs. Bancroft explained.

Members of the league will be requested to write to their congressman urging passage of the Ramspeck bill without the Nicholas amendment.

It was announced that the regional conference would be held in Columbus at the Neil House, Nov. 27. The next regular meeting of the county league is scheduled for Dec. 2 at 7:30 p. m. at the Chamber of Commerce.

HONORED FOR 50 YEARS WITH STANDARD OIL IN MANSFIELD

In recognition of his 50 years of service with the corporation, approximately 50 employes of the Standard Oil company of Ohio met at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night to pay their respects to Homer K. Cronenwett, Mansfield bulk station agent.

Cronenwett was one of 20 employes of the Mansfield division who were honored with awards for service of from five to 50 years with the company.

The 63-year-old employe, oldest active worker of the company, who started as a warehouse employe at the age of 13 at wages of 50 cents a day, was presented with a diamond-studded service pin by John B. Coleman, Mansfield division manager.

A gold wrist watch was presented him by the 156 employes in the seven-county district. Telegrams of congratulations from the president of the company and other officials were read following a dinner in the ballroom.

In a letter to Cronenwett, read at the dinner, W. T. Holliday, Standard Oil president, said: "Such length of active service means many things. It means, first of all that the man must be blessed with an exceptional physical inheritance. It means that through all the years he must have given conscientious service and that he has had a high sense of responsibility in carrying on work assigned to him."

Cronenwett heard a salute to his years of service by the "Sohio reporter" in a radio broadcast from station WTAM in Cleveland. A radio was stationed in the dining room which was turned to the station.

In a brief talk, A. A. Stambaugh of Cleveland, vice president of Standard Oil company of Ohio, cited Cronenwett's record of "rendering service to others," stating that "if there was more service in giving than receiving, this would be a better world in which to live."

"Those who serve best, exist the longest," he added in congratulating Cronenwett.

Cronenwett recalled that he first went to work for the company in 1891, before the advent of the automobile. The company manufactured kerosene and threw most of its gasoline away, he said. What was sold was dispensed in drug stores.

Presented with the award, he said: "This signifies to me that I have made good."

District Manager Coleman was presented with a ruby-studded service award for 45 years of continuous service with the company. It was presented to him by Stambaugh.

Other awards went to H. H. Keil and R. D. Macintosh, assistant division manager, both of Mansfield, and A. C. Shumaker of Ashland for 25 years service.

R. C. Hole, Lorain; L. E. Leedy and D. O. McKee of Mansfield, were given 20-year service pins, and J. P. Neff of Medina and R. Stower of Norwalk, were presented with 15-year awards.

Ten-year service pins went to W. P. Long, L. L. Long, and G. E. Mensch, Mansfield; R. H. Snyder and R. Z. Denny of Loudonville; H. R. Gould and W. C.

H. K. CRONENWETT

Rust of Elyria, and T. G. McLaughlin, Norwalk.

Five-year awards were given J. E. Christman of Galion and E. Allen of Wooster.

Presentation of the pins was made by McIntosh and Arthur Bush, assistant division managers.

Other speakers were Mayor William J. Locke, George J. Kochenderfer, M. R. Bauer, Cleveland, director of industrial lubricants, and Dr. W. P. Edmunds, Cleveland, director of industrial relations for the company.

SCHOOL BOARD SETS UP FUND FOR PROJECT

With the Mansfield schools' million-dollar building program virtually completed, the board of education last night voted to have new wiring and modern lighting equipment installed in the Senior high gymnasium at a cost of approximately $1,150.

The Ohio Public Service company was authorized to begin the installation immediately so the new lights will be ready for the first home basketball game Dec. 6.

Larger wiring in the building will also permit the use of more electrical appliances in class rooms and the installation of sun lamps and X-ray equipment for the treatment of players' injuries, H. W. Arlin, board president, said.

Arlin pointed out that tests showed lights in the Senior high gymnasium are from three to six candlepower as compared to 24 to 38 candlepower in the new John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed gymnasiums.

The schools have received the final payment on the $450,000 PWA grant for the city-wide building program, John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board, reported.

He said the board owes only $18,400 to contractors and bonding companies in connection with the building program and it is ready to pay them when contractors complete their work on the two junior high school buildings.

The entire building program, including the construction of two new junior high schools, a shop addition at Senior high school, and improvements at several grade buildings, cost $1,000,600, only $600 above the estimated cost, Eisaman said.

The project was financed by a $550,000 bond issue and the $450,000 PWA grant. The board paid the small additional cost.

Work on the new auditorium and gymnasium at the Hedges school has been completed at a total cost of $2,034, Eisaman told the board. Most of the work was done by Simon Small and Sons, Mansfield contractors.

CHAPTER XLI.

"No; because he's—the friend I was visiting is dead. He died a few weeks ago. But I can prove it. I can prove it," Jocelyn said anxiously, forestalling his interruption. "The men in the garage who went to get my car out of the mud, they'd remember. They'd have a record of it. It was about half past five o'clock on the morning of the Sunday before Thanksgiving, and Mr. Scudder here was driving back to the city, and he gave me a lift. And you told me, Scudder—don't you remember?—that you had a little boy named—I think I can remember his name; wasn't it Bruce? And you said that your little girl named Florence had died—"

"Yes, sir; we lost our little girl," Scudder said suddenly, his weak eyes filling with tears. "She wasn't nothing but a baby when we lost her."

"He told you this?" Napthaly asked Jocelyn.

"While he was driving me down to the station."

Think he was drunk?"

"I knew he'd been drinking."

"And how's it happen you've got this date fixed in your mind, Miss Britton?"

"Because—well, I have every reason to remember it. It was an important date to me. I was going to my aunt's for Thanksgiving dinner, and I went over that afternoon to her house."

"Tell her about it?"

"No."

"Didn't tell her you'd started home at five o'clock in the morning and your car had broken down?"

"No."

"Didn't tell anyone?"

"Yes; I did. I told Mr. Philip Fordyce. The man I am going to marry."

"Say, weren't you going to be married today?" the attorney asked, diverted by sudden curiosity.

"Yes, we were. But of course—if I can do anything to help Mr. Scudder—"

* * *

She felt a sudden forlornness and loneliness as she said it. She was burning her bridges behind her. Tears came into her eyes.

The attorney looked down at some penciled notes he had made. "Know a man named Boston, Scudder?" he asked.

"Bridgie Boston, yes, sir; I do," the little man answered, pitifully eager and bewildered by uncomprehending hope.

"You said you'd won a turkey and he had it," Jocelyn prompted eagerly

"That's right; that went clean out of my head," Scudder agreed, light breaking at last into his weary eyes. "That's right. He had my turkey, and I thought maybe if I got it and brought it home to Eda maybe she'd get over her mad. That's right. But I never seen Bridgie that night—" he added, puzzled again.

"You said you couldn't find the house. But surely he'd remember about the turkey," Jocelyn said.

"Where is he—Bridgie Boston?" Napthaly asked. "By George, we may have this case broken!" he added, half aloud.

"He and his folks have gone to Las Vegas. He's workin' on the Boulder Dam."

Napthaly came back, he had two other men with him One of them was Mat Phillips, the district attorney.

"Court was adjourned We have been dismissed until next Wednesday," said Napthaly. He looked excited. The district attorney sat down and asked Jocelyn questions, the other man made notes. She told them all she could But she was showing the effect of the reaction already; her eyes blazed in a pale face, she answered sometimes nervously, sometimes after hesitation.

"I had dined with a friend, a man friend in Mr Covington Kebles studio in Piedmont. I had thought that other friends were to be there Yes, it was raining hard I started home about ten o'clock, but my car slipped on a bank in the mud and I couldn't start it."

"Your friend went for help?"

"No, No he wasn't with me. I had left him at the cabin."

"And started to drive home alone? He didn't offer to come with you?"

"But that was at half past ten," said Phillips "S order here, you say, picked you up at half past five. Where were you all that time?"

"I was in my car. I had a blanket."

"You didn't go back to the—" He glanced at his notes. "—the Keble cabin?" he asked.

"No. I couldn't have found it. It was pitch dark and raining. And I was miles away."

"And Scudder here"—he always mentioned the cringing little prisoner with a sort of easy contempt—"Told you about his girl and his boy, did he?"

"The girl, the child who died, was never mentioned in the case before, Matt," said Napthaly. The other man looked at him thoughtfully, nodded his head slowly.

"I know, I know; that's a point," he conceded. "Now! What was the name of the man with whom you dined that night," he demanded suddenly. "I see in Mr. Napthaly's notes here that he has since died."

"Yes, he died some weeks ago."

"And that was—?"

Jocelyn swallowed with a dry throat.

"That was Mr. Kent Dunham."

"Mr. Kent Dunham." The district attorney looked up with a sudden light in his eyes. "Didn't he—wasn't that the fellow who killed himself down on some place in Burlingame—down on the Fordyce place?" he said. Long before he had finished his question he had answered it himself, he set the note down with a satisfied nod. "I see—" he said ruminatively. "Well, Scudder," he added, "I think you're sitting pretty. If you were over in Piedmont on that Sunday morning at half past five, then you hadn't anything to do with that affair in San Jose Avenue. We'll wire this man Boston and get him on the telephone this afternoon. Now, Miss Britton, where can we get hold of you if we need you, and where can we locate Mr Fordyce?"

"Mr. Fordyce—" she was beginning uncertainly, when the door opened and Philip came in. Jocelyn felt the panic terror of a child caught red-handed in mischief; then her heart returned gloriously to a normal beat, and she managed a smile that was close to tears.

* * *

He had given her only a friendly glance, but that was all she wanted! Now he was greeting the other men.

"Hello, Matt, got my girl in jail, did you? Hello, Sidney. How's all this going, Jocelyn?"

Joy flooded back into her soul; he wasn't angry. He was going to shoulder the whole thing, to save them all Jocelyn clung to Philip's hand

"Well, it does, Mr. Fordyce; it does, Phil," said the district attorney cautiously. "That is, if we can check on these dates. I wish you'd come in with this evidence before. We've got this thing started, we've got our jury and everything This would have made a difference This would have made a big difference We've got the time of that murder fixed at five o'clock. Now you and Miss Britton say you met while she was waiting for the six o'clock train. How d'you happen to remember the time?"

"I remember the time I took my car out of the garage at the Wahneta club. And I suppose the garage would have that down, wouldn't they, Matt?"

"Someone said the trial would be put over until Wednesday."

"Why, hell," Matt said pathetically, with great simplicity. "There won't be any trial now. We've got to go at this from another angle. I'll get right onto this and see how soon we can turn Scudder loose. I hope you get that, Mr. Scudder? You can thank this lady for saving your life; do you get that?"

"You understand, Matt," Philip said, "that it was the merest accident that Miss Britton and I came over into Judge Toward's court yesterday. I was turning over the guardianship of young Leslie Baker; his father made Judge Troward co-guardian with me, you know, and Miss Britton came into the court with me to wait until I could speak to the judge. Something that was said made her remember what had happened last November; otherwise she never would have known of Scudder's trial at all; So we'll be here now if you want us. You have her statement? You'll want one from me. It's just to the effect that I happened to pass the Piedmont station at six o'clock that Sunday morning, picked her up, and heard from her the same story she's told here."

"That's all you'll have to say, Phil."

"We're being married at four o'clock today, and we'll go off somewhere near—Del Monte, probably. I'll keep in touch with you. I'd have been here with Miss Britton," said Philip, "but I had to meet my daughter. She just got in on the Matsonia."

"I hope I can do somthing for you folks someday!" Scudder, by degrees assimilating the meaning of all this, said with sudden passion Jocelyn, standing now, with Philip beside her, laughed with tears in her eyes. "I hope you'll never know what it is to stand in the shadow of death," added the little prisoner feelingly.

"I'll bet you folks were going away on a honeymoon," said the district attorney, with compunction. "I'll tell you, you wait here a minute, Phil. Step over to court and wait, until I see if I can get in touch with Mahoney. Lynch," he said to one of the officers, "I think very probably this prisoner will be discharged this afternoon, if I can get in touch with Judge Mahoney. If not they'll probably let him go Monday. I'll be back in half an hour."

"I wish you luck!" Jocelyn said cordially, extending her hand to Scudder.

* * *

She and Philip went back into the courtroom and took two of the round-backed chairs. The place was empty now. She wondered if Scudder would go back to Carson City and his barber's chair; she wondered what the little boy would think of this story someday when his father told it.

"I know how he feels," she said.

"You!" Philip had lighted a cigaret; she knew that he was happy.

"I knew, the minute you opened that door, Phil, how poor Scudder felt. It was salvation, when I thought I was drowning alone in a big cold sea. To have you come in, so easy, so sure of yourself—but then you're always that!"

"I don't remember being so decent, down on the wharf, Jocelyn.

"You had reason, then. And believe me, I wasn't enjoying it," Jocelyn said. "I think while I was coming up here in a taxi I would have given my life to get out of what I had to do. My life! That wouldn't have worried me. But one's life never counts in those times. I had to go and drag myself down and drag you down, and Norma, and give your mother and Sandy and Janet just the weapons they've been wanting. I had to lower myself to Norma," Jocelyn went on, very close to him, one hand holding to the button of his overcoat, her beautiful eyes raised to his own. "I was to be the influence in her life that was going to steady and protect her, poor Norma, and now she'll know that I am pointed at myself, that I did just what we've always warned her not to do!"

"But you came up here," he said, with his slow smile, "you faced the music. You don't know how I loved you for it, how my heart went to you when I saw you walking away. I knew I was wrong when I said we'd wait and see how the case went. We couldn't have waited. We had to see him through. Coming just when Norma's news came, coming the very day of our wedding, it upset me. I've had lots to worry about, Jocelyn; things sprung on me make me nervous. Did you think that they'll tie all this in with Dunham's death?"

"That was the first thing I thought of."

"And that was the first thing I thought of. But we'll face 'em together, darling, and maybe they'll whip us through the market place and tear every rag of clothing off us, and we'll live through it. And then we'll get Norma away and get her business over, and live through that, too. And then you'll be Mrs. Philip Fordyce of Burlingame, raising a family of kids, liking a few families and being bored by most of 'em, going to New York with me, giving dinners, and thumbing your little nose—that is your nose that I just kissed, isn't it?—at the whole crowd"

"Oh, Phil," she said breathlessly, "if you feel that way, I'd rather have it start like this! I'd rather let them know that we aren't afraid. It was only when I thought I might lose you—I thought you were angry at me—"

"You're never going to lose me"

"Then I don't care!" His arms was about her now; they were in one chair.

* * *

The district attorney came back with another, older man, and Philip stood talking with them for a few minutes in a low tone. Jocelyn watched; was relieved to hear Philip presently laugh. Then all three turned to her.

"I wish you all the luck in the world, Miss Britton," Phillips said. "I've known this boy since he was in law college, and you certainly are getting one prince of a husband."

"Thank you," said Jocelyn, radiant.

"They think they won't need us any more," Philip said. "Matt here says that we can make for the Canadian backwoods this afternoon without being followed by a posse, which is always nice on a honeymoon. And that's that, Jocelyn," Philip added, when they had come out into a world miraculously bright and friendly and safe, and were in his car going to her Aunt Nell's at Sausalito; "that's all, I believe, we'll ever hear of that. They'll put it on the record; they'll throw the charge against Scudder out, and we'll be in Banff, the happiest people in the world. Of course, someday," he went on, "some one may dig up the story, some woman may ask you how well you knew Dunham and if you didn't testify in the Scudder trial—"

"And all I'll have to do is laugh," Jocelyn said, resting against his arm in complete content.

"Exactly."

"Phil, I am so glad I did it! I hadn't any idea it would be so important, but I knew I had to do it."

"I knew it, too, as soon as you were gone. I only waited at the dock until a few people had seen me welcoming Norma, and the press had taken some pictures of me welcoming Norma, and then I turned her over to Mother and beat it after you."

"Your mother was there?"

"Oh yes; she turned up—late; she's going to be at the wedding, trust her! She's carried Norma off to lunch—my lord, Jocelyn, we've not had any lunch, have we? We've got just two hours before we're married. Will you lunch with me at Fisherman's Wharf, Miss Britton? This is the last meal I can buy you, because after this I'll have to have my wife along."

"I hear that your wife is crazier about you than any human being ever was about anyone before," Jocelyn suggested, thoughtfully.

"If she isn't now,'" he said seriously, "you can bet she's going to be. Twenty-five years from today I'll prove it!"

The fog was gone now. Philip turned the car toward the water front and Fisherman's Wharf, and the steep streets fell away below them, and all the world looked washed and bright in the glory of the sunshine.

THE END.

SUES IN TRAIN DEATHS OF COWS

Seeking $400 for the loss of three cows which were struck by a Baltimore and Ohio railroad train in Jackson township, William W. Doolittle had filed an action in common pleas court today against the Ohio Public Service company as owner of a fence along the railroad.

Doolittle contends the power company permitted the fence between his field and the railroad to become defective and the animals broke through it and wandered onto the tracks. Two of them was killed Oct. 1 and the other was injured.
